U. S. CLOSES YEAR WITH BUDGET SURPLUS

Council Would Ban 24-Hour Parking On City Streets

FIRST READING GIVEN BILL TO CURB MOTORISTS

Councilmen Favor Funds For Park; Hospital Overtime Pay Proposed

An ordinance banning the parking of autos on Circleville streets for longer than 24 hours was given its first reading in city council Tuesday night.

The council also heard the initial reading of an ordinance authorizing payment of overtime wages to Berger hospital employees. The five members of council present at the session went on record as favoring the appropriation of $500 to the Ted Lewis Park to help pay operating costs in 1947.

Councilmen George L. Crites and John Eshelman were absent from Tuesday night's meeting.

AFTER CLERK Fred Nicholas had read to council the ordinance against prolonged parking on the streets it was emphasized that the legislation is aimed at prohibiting the "storage" of autos in city streets for more than 24 successive hours. The ordinance provides for a fine of from $5 to $25 for each such offense.

City Solicitor George Gerhardt, who drafted the ordinance on instructions from council, said the legislation was designed specifically to remedy the situation on South Pickaway street between East Franklin and East Mound streets and that it is patterned after a Columbus ordinance. However, Solicitor Gerhardt pointed out, if enacted into law the ordinance will be effective throughout Circleville. At the June 3 council meeting several residents of South Pickaway street attended and voiced protest of what they termed the use of Pickaway street for garage and storage purposes by Winner's Garage, 205 South Pickaway street. At that time Solicitor Gerhardt reminded council that the city had no ordinance covering such a situation.

THE ORDINANCE providing for overtime pay for hospital workers stipulates the overtime wage scale as $1 an hour for superintendents, $1 an hour for nurses, $1 an hour for technicians, 50 cents an hour for nurse aides, and 50 cents an hour for cooks.

A motion to appropriate $500 for the Ted Lewis Park was passed by unanimous vote following a discussion of a request voiced by Mayor Ben H. Gordon and by Robert G. Col. (Continued on Page Five)

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

There is some indication that before the Summer is over, Hawaiians will be entitled to share our joys and tax rates.

The Republicans are pushing the bill for statehood. Republicans can always use an extra state going into an election year.

If they don't get Hawaii in '48, they'll try Alaska in '52 and Staten Island in '56.

Third party talk is plentiful these days. It is felt that a splendid ticket could be made up of men who couldn't make any other ticket.

Maybe they should enlist a few youngsters. A psychologist says men reach their peak intelligence at the age of 17—at 18 they begin to slip. Some get married and some go to work.

Anyway Alf Landon has been up talking with Tom Dewey about '48 prospects. They agreed that it will be a fine year if it doesn't rain.

LOST in a mountain wilderness for two nights and a day, Greta Mary Gale, 2½, was found safe and unharmed and restored to the arms of her mother, Mrs. William Gale, Jr., of Oakland, Cal., pictured with her in a Quincy, Cal., hospital. POLICE HUNTING FIREBUG AFTER BARN BLAZES

Damage Small At Buildings Believed Ignited By Use Of Paper

Declaring that two Circleville fires Wednesday morning were of incendiary origin Police Chief William F. McCrady and Fire Chief Talmer Wise warned that a "firebug" is loose in the city.

Chief McCrady announced the launching of an intensive city-wide police hunt for a man charged with setting fire to two barns early Wednesday.

At 1:30 a. m. firemen were called to extinguish a blazing barn at the rear of the Leonard Morgan home at 133 East Mill street. Fire Chief Wise said the fire was of incendiary origin and that the loss was small.

CHIEF McCRADY asserted that the Morgan barn was ignited by the deliberate lighting of some waste paper and that a man was observed in the act of incendiary arson and was also seen running from the scene.

Firemen were called at 4:40 to the home of Fred Brunner at 317 South Court street where a barn at the rear was in flames. Chief Wise said this blaze was extinguished, also with small loss, and that it also was the work of a "firebug."

Belief that both barn fires were set by the same arsonist was expressed by Chief McCrady and Chief Wise. They said waste paper was also used to ignite the Brunner barn.

A SERIES of incendiary barn fires occurred in August, 1946, in Circleville, and the "firebug" was never apprehended, it was pointed out by Chief McCrady.

The Brunner and Morgan barns are situated about two blocks apart on the south side of Circleville. Chief Wise said the loss in both instances was covered by insurance.

The state marshal's office, Chief Wise said, notified him that a deputy fire marshal will be dispatched to Circleville to conduct an investigation.

WARM AND HUMID IS GUESS FOR 4TH WEATHER

By International News Service
"How will the Fourth be?" is the weather questions most Ohioans are asking today.

Weathermen said they could venture only a tentative forecast. "It looks as if the holiday will be partly cloudy, warm and humid, with some possibility of showers late in the day," they reported.

Today brought moderate temperatures and scudding white clouds against the blue backdrop. Blankets for sleepers will be in order tonight.

Rising temperatures are in store for the state tomorrow.

Marshall Says 'Voice' Vital In Foreign Policy

WASHINGTON, July 2—Secretary of State Marshall warned congress today that he will have "serious handicaps" in carrying forward America's drive for peace if authorization for his "Voice of America" program is delayed until next year.

Marshall urged a senate foreign relations subcommittee to press for passage, before congress adjourns, of the house-approved Mundt bill which gives a "firm legislative foundation" for his cultural and information program overseas.

CONFERENCE ON MARSHALL PLAN ENDS IN PARIS

PARIS, July 2—Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov brought the Paris conference on European aid under the Marshall plan to a dismal end today when he left the three-power parley after five days of fruitless debate with England and France.

Shortly after he warned in a final statement that the Anglo-French part in the Marshall plan "would lead to no good result," the Russian statesman was escorted from the conference room by French Foreign Minister Bidault.

Molotov also forecast the danger of an East-West division, and accused the United States of "seeking to establish their domination" over Europe.

Molotov flatly rejected the French counter-proposal which Bidault had advanced last night as the "last effort" at conciliation.

Guardsmen Get Pay, Equipment

Thirty members of Company I, Circleville unit of the Ohio National Guard, Wednesday had received their first pay and part of their equipment.

First pay checks were issued Tuesday evening at the regular weekly drill session. Clothing also was issued to members of the company.

Captain Jack Clifton said he had been assured that the rest of the company's equipment, including jeeps, will be here soon.

Issuing of equipment followed federal approval of the unit several weeks ago. Pay checks are retroactive to early in May, when the unit was organized.

FARMERS GET WEATHER HELP

Weekly Crop Report Says Late Fall Necessary To Save Corn

COLUMBUS, O., July 2 — The sun has finally come to the aid of Ohio farmers after hiding behind rain clouds for so many weeks that the state's scheduled corn crop has been drastically reduced.

The weather bureau reported today that last week's rainfall was sufficient and furthermore, had cooperated with the farmers by arriving mostly at night or on Sunday afternoon to minimize interference with late planting.

UNLESS THERE is an unusually late or favorable Autumn, the weather bureau predicts that some of the corn now in the ground was planted too late to reach maturity. In some sections, acreage planted is from 10 to 40 per cent less than had been expected. The weekly crop report said:

"Corn in central Ohio is still mostly less than a foot high, though the best is two feet or more. But in a good many fields, corn is now just coming up."

Plantings of soybeans, which have been substituted for corn in many cases, is nearly completed in the southern and central sections of the state and is progressing rapidly in the northern area.

ON OTHER CROPS, the bureau reported:

Wheat—Advanced rapidly last week, with some ready for harvesting in southern Ohio and coloring as far north as Ashland and Lima.

Tomatoes—Planting for canning about completed in northwestern section.

Oats—Still green, but headed. Short straw reported in many cases.

Tobacco—Advancing well. Tree fruits—Large crops expected in northern Ohio.

REPUBLICANS HINT THEY WILL WORK FOR TAX CUT

WASHINGTON, July 2—Senate GOP leaders indicated today they were swinging toward a decision to push through a new Jan. 1, 1948 tax reduction bill before congress adjourns this month.

House and senate leaders scheduled a conference on the legislative agenda for this afternoon, with the No. 1 question whether the senate has the "sure" votes to enact the tax bill over a second presidential veto.

Both sides agreed to make a final decision by Thursday.

BALANCE LEFT FOR FIRST TIME SINCE 1930

Surplus Of $754,000,000 Less Than Estimated By Truman In April

WASHINGTON, July 2—Treasury Secretary John Snyder announced today that the United States government closed the fiscal year 1947 with a budget surplus of 754 million dollars—the first surplus since 1930.

Snyder also said that the public debt during the fiscal year ended June 30 was slashed by over 11 and a half billion dollars.

The three-quarter billion dollar surplus was a half billion dollars less than was estimated by President Truman in April.

However, it was the first surplus since 1930 when President Herbert Hoover closed the fiscal year 738 million dollars in the black.

HIGHEST SURPLUS in American history occurred in 1927 when President Coolidge chalked up a one billion, 155 million dollar excess of receipts over expenditures.

In announcing that the U. S. government is again operating in the black after 17 years in the red, Snyder said:

"The President has constantly taken the initiative in cutting expenditures consistent with the national safety and welfare."

"Whenever possible the President has regarded the appropriations granted by congress as ceilings, rather than as targets."

"In numerous cases he has cut expenditures drastically below those authorized by congress."

"Since taking office, President Truman has recommended to the congress the cancellation of appropriations to the congress totaling over 65 million dollars."

SNYDER ASSERTED himself not yet in favor of a tax cut. He asserted:

"Congress has not put me in a position to change my mind a bit."

The secretary expressed himself "delighted" with the budget surplus, but stated he "had hoped it would be higher." He said the surplus probably will be applied to the public debt "so as to cut out big interest payments."

SNYDER SAID that in the fiscal year just closed total government expenditures amounted to 42 billion, 505 million dollars—a one-third cut from the preceding fiscal year's expenditures and a decline of nearly 60 per cent from the wartime peak of over 100 billion dollars reached in 1945.

The 1946 fiscal year ended with a deficit of over 20 and one-half billion dollars.

Receipts for fiscal '47 totaled 43 billion, 258 million dollars—759 million dollars more than the estimates released by the President on April 19.

SAFETY BOARD WARNS CONGRESS FUNDS NEEDED

WASHINGTON, July 2—President Truman's special board of inquiry on air safety today warned that unless congress provides sufficient funds for safe flying aids "the tragic pattern" of air accidents will continue.

James M. Landis, chairman of the President's special board, today made a second interim report emphasizing that "an emergency situation" provoked the board's action.

The board said that unless congress provides adequate funds for the installation of safety devices that air accidents "inevitably" will continue.

ville for city cash to pay the park caretaker.

Mayor Gordon reminded the council that no sum for the park was included in the city's 1947 schedule of appropriations although last year the city appropriated $1,000 for the park. The mayor asked an appropriation sufficient to pay the caretaker and he pointed out that because of the lack of such money the $3,500 trust fund of the park has recently been "dipped into" for the caretaker's wages. He said the trust fund is earmarked for permanent improvements. Mayor Gordon disclosed that the park commission plans to soon build modern lavatories.

MR. COLVILLE told council that only $750 of last year's $1,000 appropriation from the city was used and he urged that the city now appropriate $500 to the park for payment to the caretaker and to reimburse the trust fund.

Councilman Ray Anderson voiced approval of the request and offered the motion to instruct Solicitor Gerhardt to prepare the necessary ordinance.

Councilman Ray Cook said that he has "all along" favored an annual appropriation to the park and that it was a "mistake" not to have included in the 1947 city budget an appropriation of $1,400 for the park. Councilman William M. Reid commented that "it is selfish to skimp on the park appropriation when the Ted Lewis Park benefits so many children."

dent, announced defeat of the measure. Four votes were necessary to pass the ordinance because the council has seven members and four is a majority. Two council members, George L. Crites and John Eshelman, were absent from Tuesday night's session.

When the criticism of street lights in outlying sections was voiced by Councilman Horn who suggested that the lights removed from downtown streets to make way for the new boulevard lights be used to replace the "bird boxes" on the outskirts of Circleville, Councilman Reid arose and said: "Maybe Mr. Horn doesn't know that we went through a depression in Circleville and that during that depression we had to buy cheap lights."

Council took no action on the street light proposal.

ORDINANCES given their first reading provide (1) an appropriation of $459 to purchase chairs and linoleum and for installation of a shower bath in the fire station on East Franklin street, (2) directing the service director to purchase and install a traffic light at South Court and Walnut streets, (3) an appropriation of $3,000 to replenish the medical fund of Berger hospital, and (4) an appropriation of $300 to finance extension of the First avenue sanitary sewer.

Ordinances given their second readings authorize (1) an appropriation of $2,000 to pay special police officers, (2) granting $200 a month wage bonus to the water department meter maintenance man and the meter reader maintenance man, (3) an appropriation of $5,000 to the service department for the repaving and resurfacing of streets, and (4) granting a $4 a week wage increase to the supervisor of the municipal dump.

MAYOR Ben H. Gordon's report covering June was approved by unanimous vote. The report listed fines $20, licenses $4, bonds $115, total $139.

On behalf of the council finance committee Councilman Adkins submitted the city's financial report as of July 1. The report, which was unanimously approved, listed: General fund, receipts $2,783.54, expenditures $5,660.90, balance $24,321.10; sewage disposal, receipts $475, expenditures $2,356.56, balance $1,651.11; library fund receipts $98.94, expenditures $929.08, balance $8,613.87; auto street repair, receipts $32.50, expenditures $4,884.66, balance $1,713.18; gasoline tax fund, receipts none, expenditures $1,776.92, balance $93.59; hospital fund, receipts $4,034.31, expenditures $3,966.10, balance $3,131.18; waterworks fund, receipts $4,290, expenditures $14,374.94, balance $24,282.90. PARIS PAPER SAYS AMERICANS ENCOURAGE PLOT

PARIS, July 2—An influential Paris newspaper inferentially accused American interests to day of seeking to provoke war by encouraging the "Black Maquis" right-wing militarist plot to overthrow the French republican government.

The French press agency also reported that Gen. Edouard de Larminat had been dismissed from the post of inspector-general of colonial troops for alleged complicity.

The American angle was injected into the widening official investigation into the plot by the newspaper L'Intransigent.

This publication said the "Black Maquis" were affiliated with foreign interests wishing to provoke a world war now "while they possess a superior weapon—the atom bomb—over an eventual adversary."

The newspaper said these circles believe that before the end of December the "adversary" will have perfected a bacteriological weapon which will outclass the atom bomb.

WASHINGTON, July 2—A Chicago economist told congress today that the nation is on the verge of a peacetime emergency which may necessitate a return to rationing of food and other products.

Dr. Leverett S. Lyon, chief executive officer of the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry, urged the joint congressional committee on the economic report to consider a rationing plan. He said:

"We are approaching, if we have not already reached, an emergency—if not a wartime economic emergency."

"We have reached a stage where congress may well give consideration to rationing of certain products of which food should be the first."

Lyon declared that congress should worry about inflation rather than the possibility of a recession.

Wash Hands Before Eating Urged as Polio Precaution

Parents should see that children wash hands thoroughly before eating as one precaution against polio, particularly during the summer epidemic season, according to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

The National Foundation through its local chapter is issuing a series of six simple health rules that should be observed during the summer to help combat the disease.

Scientific studies, financed by March of Dimes funds, indicate that the hands may be a means of spreading the virus infection through contamination of food, drinks or objects carried to the mouth.

For this reason, a high standard of personal cleanliness should be maintained especially during the polio danger months—late June through September, the National Foundation cautions, adding that fresh fruit and vegetables should be washed well before eating.

OXBOEL CAMP FOR GERMAN REFUGEES, Denmark, July 2—Denmark is confronted today with more than 130,000 Germans "who came to dinner" two and a half years ago and will probably remain as unwelcome guests indefinitely.

Even though patience is wearing thin the Danes continue, in the role of polite hosts, working at heavy expense in time and money not only to make the Germans comfortable but to make them better citizens and teach them democracy.

Instilling democracy in such long time Nazis is a slow, painful task. A small body of anti-Nazi German emigrants attached to the Danish refugee administration is of considerable help.

ANKER PETERSEN, Danish administrator of Oxboel, said that when the first ballots were distributed among the Germans for the election of officers they did not know what to do with them.

It is difficult to tell to what extent Nazi ideas have been erased in the camps. War criminals, however, are being weeded out, and a number of active Nazis who attempted to find sanctuary in the refugee camps have been detected and returned to Germany.

In carrying out the democratic idea, the 30 refugee camps in Denmark are constituted as townships, with German mayors, vice mayors and town councils.

The Danes perform only a controlling role in the administration of the camps and in the well equipped hospitals where German doctors and nurses perform the actual work.

The Danish government decided at the outset to keep the refugees sharply segregated from the native population. Languages are taught in the camp schools, but not Danish. The Danes do not want to take any step which might lead to an absorption of this foreign and disliked element.

ALREADY THEY have been in Denmark two and a half years. When the motley, tired and sick throngs entered the country the wehrmacht took over thousands of dwellings and public buildings—including more than 80 per cent of the school-houses in Copenhagen—to billet them.

Subsequently, when Germany's resistance collapsed, Denmark inherited them from the wehrmacht. Scattered throughout the country, the 220,000 Germans were diseased and hungry, presenting a danger of contamination to the native population and a headache to the authorities.

About 20,000 were quartered on Bornholm island where the Nazis had built a Baltic base. When the Russians captured the base, they evacuated the civilians to Germany.

But 200,000 others had to be cared for, decontaminated and removed from the schools, private homes and cultural centers.

DENMARK persistently has demanded that the occupying powers permit their repatriation to Germany. In recent months some 70,000 have been repatriated and about 30,000 are scheduled to go before Fall. But the allies say no more can be received in Germany because conditions there are too chaotic.

This will leave Denmark with 100,000 still to be cared for indefinitely. The Danes cannot understand why they must provide a haven for their erstwhile enemies.

They learn that Poland, Czechoslovakia and Hungary have poured millions of people of German origin—not German refugees—into Germany. They demand to know why Germans

RABBIT DAMAGE TO VEGETABLES CAN BE HALTED

Many Ways To Keep Bunnies From Nibbling Away On Home Gardens

Hungry bunnies need not be exterminated to prevent damage to garden flowers and vegetables, according to the Wildlife Management Institute.

Numerous distasteful repellents can be used to discourage rabbits from eating tender plants and chewing young orchard stock, and they are not expensive.

A number of the cheap commercial spraying mixtures and dusting powders will keep cottontails from nibbling on plantings, or any of the following "home remedies" will prove most effective with repeated applications: dust plants liberally with dusting sulphur, or with powdered lime when plantings are damp; sprinkle plants with red or cayenne pepper; or spray plants with a solution of any of these mixtures, three ounces of epsom salts in a gallon of water, one teaspoonful of lysol to a gallon of water, two teaspoonsful of Black Leaf Forty to one gallon of soapy water.

GARDENERS can best solve the rabbit problems by erecting a two foot chicken wire fence around the garden or orchard, but the bottom should be staked to the ground.

The Ohio division of conservation live-trapping program, expected to get under way next January, will to a great extent eliminate rabbit damage to city gardens and orchards, when youth organizations aiding division field men, will transfer several thousand rabbits from urban and suburban areas to rural sectors.

Construction of the 6000 live-trap-carriers to be used in the project is expected to begin next month.

'ON THE BEAM' SLOGAN FOR NEW OHIO STATE FAIR

"On the Beam!" That is the slogan adopted for the 1947 Ohio State Fair which will be held at Columbus August 23 to 29.

"Now that the war is over and this country finds itself in peacetime production, with new farm and home equipment and many new commodities on the market, it occurred to us that this slogan was quite appropriate," stated State Fair Manager Ed Bath.

"Truly the Ohio State Fair, which is the show window of Ohio's agricultural and industrial progress will be 'on the beam'. We will have many former exhibitors on the grounds this year, now that they have products to sell," he said. "And you would be surprised at the exhibits which will give a glimpse into the future, exhibiting modern equipment for the farm, the factory, the home and for individual use."

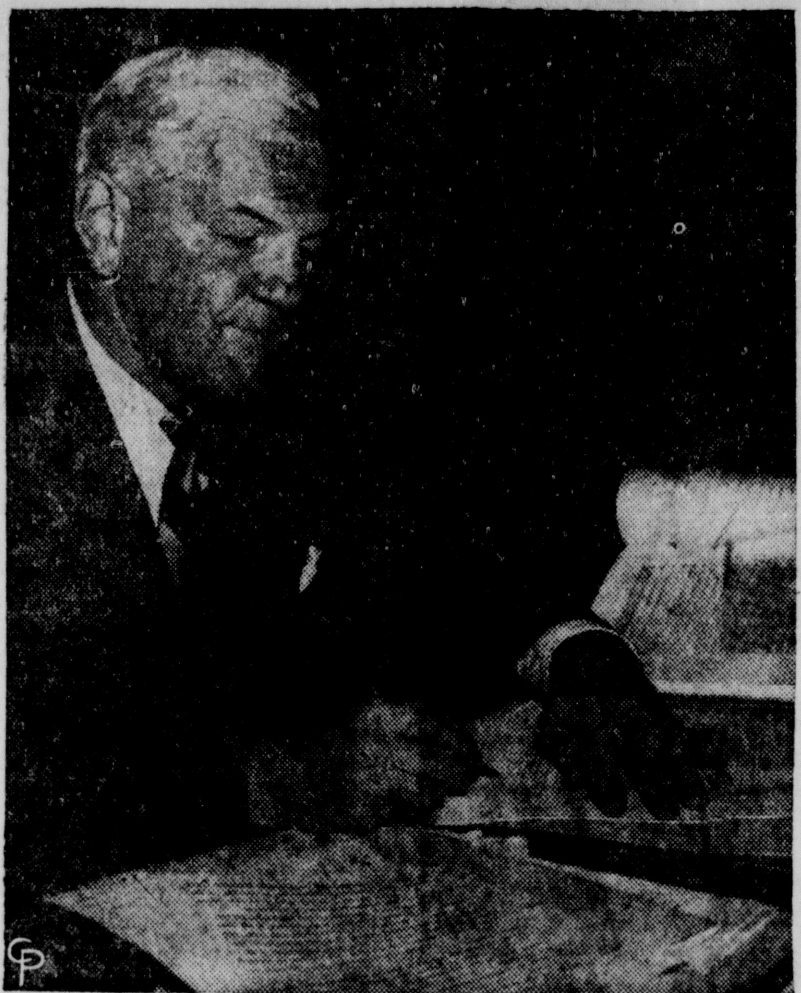

"We are trying to streamline the Ohio State Fair to truly reflect this post-war period in which the Buckeye state is playing such an important role," Mr. Bath stated, pointing out that early entries indicate that the livestock, agricultural, and educational exhibits will keep pace with the "on the beam" progress of the remainder of the fair.

PACK OF DOGS CHEW TO DEATH BOY IN BRONX

NEW YORK, July 2—Police and medical authorities today probed the death of Stanley Balaban, 11, who was chewed to death by a pack of white bull terriers in the Bronx.

The attack occurred yesterday morning but the boy's body was not found until late afternoon when Patrolman Louis Rissone was called to the scene. Rissone was attacked by the dogs and was bitten on the right hip and shoulder. A police radio squad arrived in time to rescue Rissone and shot two of the animals.

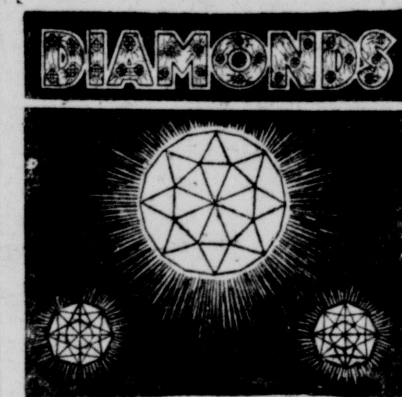

Police said Stanley had been swimming at the Castle Hill bathing park in the Bronx and had left his clothes behind a wire fence. They said the dogs attacked him when he climbed the fence to get his clothes.

Two other dogs, all owned by Sven Sandgren, took part in the attack on the boy, police said. Sandgren contended the boy was trespassing. He said the dogs had been locked up and that someone had broken into his boathouse and freed them.

HOME BUYERS OVERLOOK MANY TAX DEDUCTIONS

Accountants Urge Use Of Long Form In Making Out Returns

Next March 15 is relatively a long way off, but the wise home buyer will start now to anticipate the date and keep a record and proof of expenses, losses and other items that can be deducted from income taxes.

Unless such records are noted at the time, the average person has considerable difficulty in recalling and documenting them when tax-paying time comes around, according to accountants who specialize in income tax work.

It is estimated that home buyers are entitled to millions of dollars in deductions which they fail to report. Now, with no immediate reduction in tax rates in sight as a result of the Presidential veto of the tax bill, deductible items assume large importance.

MOST HOME buyers who are financing their purchase with a mortgage find they will come out further ahead if they use the long tax form to compute deductions exactly for interest and real estate and other taxes instead of using the short form which makes a flat allowable deduction of 10 per cent if income is less than $5,000 or $500 if more than $5,000.

Losses caused by fire, storm, explosion, frozen pipes—even drouth and casualty damage to trees—are deductible when not fully compensated by insurance. The deduction is the difference between the amount of insurance received and cost of replacement. This does not apply, however, to termite or erosion damage. The law uses the words, "sudden, unexpected or unusual cause."

Neither can deductions be made for construction costs, expenses in acquiring property such as perfecting title, insurance premiums on the residence, decrease in value, attorney's fees, or local assessments which benefit the property.

ON THE OTHER hand, the home buyer can get credit for cost of replacing trees and shrubbery, provided damage came unexpectedly by storm, drouth, insects or accident.

Proof must be submitted as to loss, such as an estimate by an expert of the property value with and without the shrubbery and trees.

FORMER AGENT FOR BRITISH IS SOUGHT IN PLOT

PARIS, July 2—A French nobleman who served daringly in the war as a British intelligence agent was hunted today as an arch-conspirator in the rightist "Black Magis" plot to overthrow the fourth republic.

French secret police threw out a nationwide dragnet for 30-year-old, one-legged Count Herouet Demerville, a fabulous wartime daredevil who blew up the Nazi propaganda radio station, "Voice of the Reich."

County Demerville, who formerly lived in Rio de Janeiro, was described as a key member of the conspiracy that was to have been touched off by commando raids and flying armored-column attacks on Paris.

Seized French fighter planes were to have given protective cover for the lightning sweep dedicated to setting up a totalitarian "directoire" government in the Napoleonic tradition.

Secret police announced the arrest of stockbroker Pierre Lefebvre, whom they described as a minor link in the abortive conspiracy, rooted in the conservative cities and villages of Brittany.

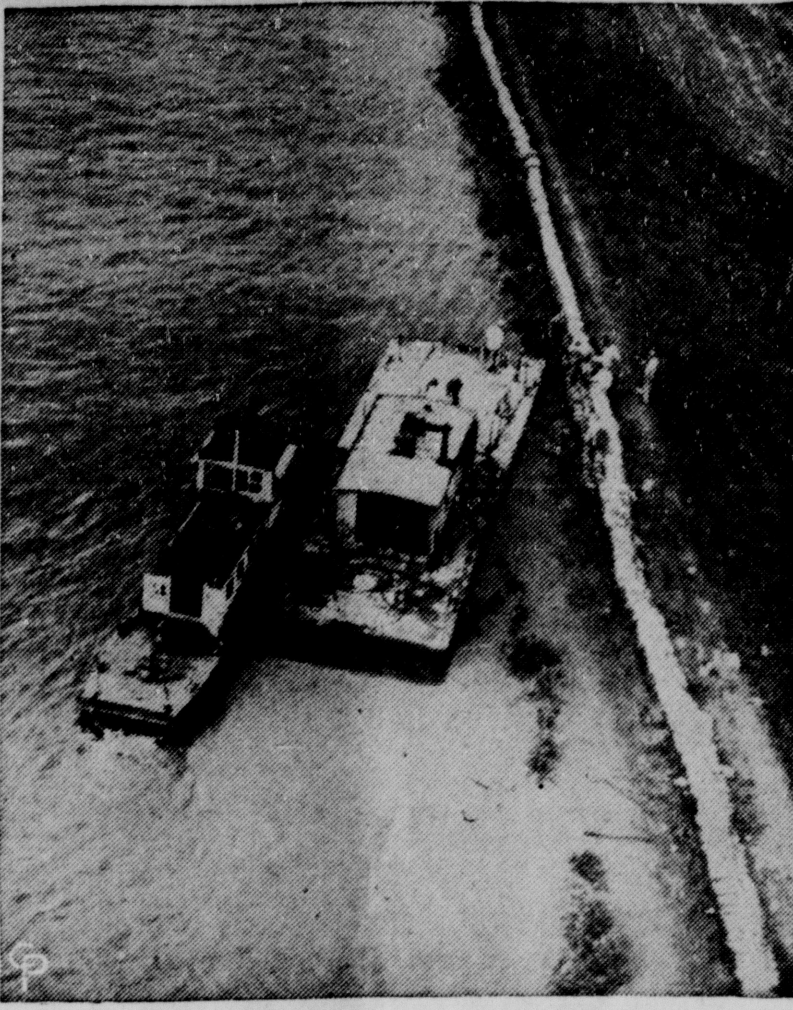

Government agents continued the questioning of 20-year-old Claude Chauvel, who was seized yesterday as his father, Jean Chauvel, secretary general of the foreign office strove to save the Marshall plan at the Paris Big-Three conference.

CONGRESS HITS SNAG TRYING TO PROVIDE FUNDS

WASHINGTON, July 2—Congress struck an impasse today on providing immediate funds for operation of government departments in the new fiscal year.

The senate appropriations committee unanimously rejected a house resolution continuing funds on a limited basis affecting less than half a dozen agencies. It substituted its own bill which authorizes the departments to continue expenditures for the next month at the same rate as provided this year.

Chairman Bridges (R) N. H., and members of the senate committee immediately went into conference with house appropriation leaders in an effort to iron out the differences which developed from the year-end log jam of appropriation bills.

BOY SAVES LIFE OF MAN WHO FELL INTO LAKE

COLUMBUS, O., July 2—A 71-year-old Columbus man owed his life today to the heroism and quick thinking of a 15-year-old high school student who rescued him from drowning.

The man, Osborne Bell, was struggling in the waters of Scioto lake yesterday when Howard Bailey answered his calls for aid.

The modest youth dismissed the incident by saying "there wasn't much to it." Osborne said he slipped and fell into the water while walking along the bank.

JAPAN GOES WHALING

A JAPANESE whaling expedition to the Antarctic, though disapproved by Britain, Australia, New Zealand and Norway, is to go ahead, under the endorsement of Secretary of State Marshall and Gen. MacArthur. This revival of a national industry, it is estimated, will net ten million dollars which can be applied to U. S. occupation costs in Japan. Further, something like $6,000,000 worth of whale oil will bring an important item into foreign exchange on the plus side for this country. There are other usable products provided by whales. The expedition is a vigorous step toward helping the Japanese to support themselves. It certainly is of wide interest to the American taxpayer. Since this country is assuming the cost of Japan's food deficit, official sanction of the whaling expedition seems well within U. S. rights.

FORTY-NINTH STAR

HAWAII, more than ever, wants to become a state. In an informative book on the island, written by Prof. Blake Clark of the University of Hawaii, arguments are marshalled for adding this territory as the nation's 49th state. The author believes that a local plebiscite would show 90 per cent approval. The territorial legislature has petitioned 14 times for statehood, a dozen Congressional investigating committees have reported favorably on such a move.

For a long time fear of the disloyalty of the island's 150,000 Japanese influenced army, navy and American politicians against admitting the island since Japanese congressmen from Hawaii would have access to information that could be sent on to Tokyo. Fear of Japanese menace has been removed by the war and the heroic performance in battle of the Nisei, or, as they prefer to be called, the AJA, "Americans of Japanese Ancestry."

Business interests, which opposed statehood because they did not wish to end the benevolent feudalism maintained toward workers, now have learned to work with labor unions and show a new attitude toward native employees.

Citizens of the Mainland would do well to inform themselves about this island paradise, for it looks as if one of these days it's going to be allowed to join up. The old flag is probably in for a change in its star arrangements.

THE LAST AMUNDSEN

ROALD AMUNDSEN, having no children of his own to carry on his name, adopted an Eskimo girl. He was the Norwegian explorer who earned immortality by a triple crown of achievements which no one can rival. He discovered the South Pole, was the first to see both the South and the North Poles, and the first to find and achieve the Northwest Passage from the Atlantic to the Pacific by way of the Arctic.

ASSIGNMENT: AMERICA

By Kenneth L. Dixon
Distributed by International News Service

WASHINGTON, July 2 — The little restaurant and amusement center was busy with the afternoon trade. Quite a few people, just back from visiting the zoo, were eating, drinking and playing the various coin machines.

There were gadgets where you could test your weight, your grip, your electricity-shock-resistance or get your fortune told. And, of course, there were many machines devoted to testing your accuracy with various types of weapons.

One of these modern-warfare gadgets, located right next to the machine which tests your ability to drive across the country without getting off the road, was getting a lot of play from the younger element in the crowd.

It was the atomic bombing machine, and the youngsters were crowding one another for the opportunity to play it.

For a nickel (I think it was) you could "atom-bomb" a city and count up your score. It was quite an intriguing layout.

Within the machine was a perfectly pictured city, complete with skyscrapers, slums, tenements and all the metropolitan trappings. You read the instructions, put your coin in the slot and got set to atomize the entire pictured city.

Of course, if your hand wavered slightly on the controls and you dropped your bombs out around the outskirts, you wouldn't kill nearly as many people as you should—and your score would be lower.

For the scoring was done entirely on the basis of how many thousands of citizens you managed to kill.

As was mentioned before, the gadget was getting quite an enthusiastic play from the kids. A trio of ten-year-olds were busy operating it at the time.

Their conversation went something like this:

The little redheaded boy, as soon as the "mission accomplished" sign went up on the machine — "I got 60,000! I got 60,000!"

The towhead who followed him — "Aw, that's not so hot. I killed 80,000 the other day. Now watch me!"

The freckle-face who was waiting his turn — "It's how you aim ahead of time that does it. You gotta remember that you're in an airplane, so you gotta bomb from behind the target. That's what does it!"

Sure enough, the towhead managed to kill several thousand more residents of the much-bombed city than had the redhead. Then freckle-face took over and showed them the real art of atomic bombing. He got close to 100,000.

"Nothing to it," he shrugged with transparent modesty. "you just gotta know how to aim these things."

He perished in 1922 in the Arctic while searching in the hopes of rescuing a lost personal enemy, Gen. Umberto Nobile.

Now Nita Amundsen, the Eskimo girl whom he adopted, has entered Nazarene College in Red Deer, Alberta. She hopes later to become a teacher of her people in Alaska. So the Amundsen tradition of friendliness with the Eskimos goes on.

A Wound That May Be Serious

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

NOBODY likes to make a fuss about nothing and somehow or other for most people a wound of the hand seems to fall into this category. Unless there is a great deal of bleeding at the time of the injury or a bad infection later on, we feel the matter scarcely merits the attention of the doctor. Quite the reverse is true.

A wound which seems trivial at first may have serious consequences for the reason that, on the hand, nerves, tendons and other important structures lie close to the surface. If one of these is severed, use of the hand may be lost unless given prompt attention.

A Sterile Dressing
According to Dr. John E. Kirkpatrick of San Francisco, when the injured patient is first seen, the wound is protected from further infection with a dry, sterile dressing. This is bandaged in place to help control bleeding. When the bleeding has been controlled, the physician makes a careful study to determine just what structures have been injured.

It may be necessary to take an X-ray to see if any bones have been broken. The skin is examined to see if there is any loss of sensation due to nerve injuries. Then, too, it is important to find out if any of the tendons which connect muscle to bone have been cut. Once a physician has determined the extent of the tissue damage, the patient is taken to the operating room, given an anesthetic to put him to sleep, and the wound is repaired.

In doing this, the skin around the wound is cleaned first with soap and sterile water. Then the wound itself is cleaned and finally washed out with a warm, sterile salt solution. Here again, some physicians prefer using antiseptics.

Injured Structure Repaired
Next, all dead tissue is cut away, and the injured structures are repaired. This may mean sewing the cut ends of tendons or nerves together.

After the repair is completed and the skin sewed up, the wound is covered with sterile gauze which has first been soaked in a mild ointment such as sterile petrolatum. In some cases, it may be necessary to apply a plaster cast to keep the fingers in the proper position, which will relax the injured nerves and tendons while they are healing.

Hand injuries should never be neglected because they may lead to permanent incapacity.

The HOLLOW

SYNOPSIS

Elderly Lady Lucy Angkatell discussed the problem of entertaining the innumerable group of guests she had invited to The Hollow for the coming week-end with young Midge Hardcastle, a distant relative. Outside of attractive Dr. John Christow and Gerda, his incredibly dull wife, the others were all members of the Angkatell clan: kindly Henrietta Savernake, successful sculptress; serious-minded young David Angkatell, university student; and quiet Edward Angkatell, whose unrequited love of Henrietta blinded him to the charms of Midge, who had adored him since childhood. Meanwhile, in her London studio, Henrietta was in the throes of completing her latest masterpiece—the blind Naxos. The search for the right model had been long and arduous and, although the features of the girl she had finally chosen were perfect, the sordidness of her character had somehow managed to creep into Henrietta's finished work. Not even thoughts of John Christow, with whom Henrietta had been in love for the past six months, dispelled her dissatisfaction with the statue, and reluctantly, she destroyed it. In his Harley Street consulting room, John Christow sat pondering the cause of his increasing lassitude and irritability. Following lunch with the children, he and Gerda would drive to The Hollow . . . and Henrietta. His thoughts went back to an earlier chapter in his life, fifteen years ago, when he had been seduced in love with glamorous Veronica Cray, rising young motion picture actress. He had broken their engagement when she refused to give up her career, and shortly after had married the prosaic Gerda, whose slavish devotion to him through the years had enabled him to pursue his beloved profession in peace.

CHAPTER SIX

IN THE dining room of the flat above the consulting room, Gerda Christow was staring at a joint of mutton.

Should she or should she not send it back to the kitchen to be kept warm?

If John was going to be much longer it would be cold—congealed, and that would be dreadful.

But, on the other hand, the last patient had gone, John would be up in a moment, if she sent it back there, would be delayed—John was so impatient. "But surely you knew I was just coming . . ."

There would be that tone of suppressed exasperation in his voice that she knew and dreaded. Besides, it would get overcooked, dried up—John hated overcooked meat.

But on the other hand he disliked cold food very much indeed. At any rate, the dish was nice and hot.

Her mind oscillated to and fro and her sense of misery and anxiety deepened.

The whole world had shrunk to a leg of mutton getting cold on a dish.

On the other side of the table her son Terence, aged twelve, said: "Boracic salts burn with a green flame, sodium salts are yellow."

Gerda looked distractedly across the table at his square freckled face. She had no idea what he was talking about.

"Did you know that, Mother?" "Know what, dear?"

"About salts."

Gerda's eyes flew distractedly to the salt cellar. Yes, salt and pepper were on the table. That was all right. Last week Lewis had forgotten them and that had annoyed John. There was always something.

"It's one of the chemical tests," said Terence in a dreamy voice. "Jolly interesting, I think."

—as you might have suspected—in a bar room.

Grandpappy Jenkins thinks fitting punishment for that Iranian prince who played hockey from school by hopping a transatlantic plane should be a spanking administered by his teacher via radar.

And it's Zadok Dumkopf who says he never goes on picnics because he is allergic to ants.

An English town crier and a Tennessee hog caller, we see by the papers, yelled at each other via transoceanic telephone. What we can't understand is why they bothered with a phone.

The largest animals are found in the coldest climate, according to biologists. If that is the case why don't the elephants hike back to the North Pole where they belong?

The Justice department in labelling ASCAP, the song writers' society, a cartel apparently doesn't care for Tin Pan Alley's tune.

Ah, there's good news today from the bottle fields of Europe! The first shipment of imported Pilsener beer—10,000 gallons of the stuff—has arrived in the U. S. A.

Zena, aged nine, with a pretty, vacuous face, whimpered: "I want my dinner. Can't we start, Mother?"

"In a minute, dear; we must wait for Father."

"We could start," said Terence. "Father wouldn't mind. You know how fast he eats."

Gerda shook her head. Carve the mutton? But she never could remember which was the right side to plunge the knife in. Of course, perhaps Lewis had put it the right way on the dish, but sometimes she didn't—and John was always annoyed if it was done the wrong way. And, Gerda reflected desperately, it always was the wrong way when she did it. Oh, dear, how cold the gravy was getting—a skin was forming on the top of it—she must send it back—but then if John were just coming—and surely he would be coming now—

Her mind went around and around unhappily . . . like a trapped animal.

Sitting back in his consulting room chair, tapping with one hand on the table in front of him, conscious that upstairs lunch must be ready, John Christow was nevertheless unable to force himself to get up.

San Miguel . . . blue sea . . . smell of mimosa . . . a scarlet trim on a bright green dress . . . the hot sun . . . that desperation of love and suffering.

He thought, Oh, Lord, not that. Never that again! That's over.

He wished suddenly that he had never known Veronica, never married Gerda, never met Henrietta.

Mrs. Crabtree, he thought, was worth the lot of them . . . That had been a bad afternoon last week. He'd been so pleased with the reactions. She could stand 900 by now. And then had come that alarming rise in toxicity and the D.L. reaction had been negative instead of positive.

The old bean had lain there, blue, gasping for breath—peering up at him with malicious, indomitable eyes.

"Making a bit of a guinea pig out of me, ain't you, dearie? Experimenting—that kinder thing."

He had said, smiling down at her. "Up to your tricks, yer mean!"

She had grinned suddenly. "I don't mind, bless yer. You carry on, doctor! Someone's got to be first, that's it, ain't it? 'Ad me a kid. It wasn't 'alf a difficult business then! Looked terrible, I did. Couldn't get a comb through it. But there—I enjoyed the fun. You can 'ave yer fun with me. I can stand it."

"Feel pretty bad, don't you?" His hand was on her pulse. Vitality passed from him to the panting old woman on the bed.

"Orful, I feel. You're about right! 'Ain't gone according to plan—that's it, isn't it? Never you mind. Don't you lose 'eart. I can stand a lot, I can!"

John Christow said appreciatively: "You're fine. I wish all my patients were like you."

"I wonder get well . . . that's why I wonder get well. Mum, she lived to be ninety-eight—and old grandma was mighty when she popped off. We're long livers in our family, we are."

He had come away miserable, racked with doubt and uncertainty. He'd been so sure he was on the right track. Where had he gone wrong? How diminish the toxicity and keep up the hormone content and at the same time neutralize the pantratin?

He'd been too cock-sure—he'd taken it for granted that he'd circumvented all the snags.

And it was then, on the steps of St. Christopher's that a sudden desperate weariness had overcome him—a hatred of all this long, slow, wearisome clinical work, and he'd thought of Henrietta. Thought of her suddenly, not as herself, but of her beauty and her freshness, her health and her radiant vitality—and the faint smell of primroses that clung about her hair.

And he had gone to Henrietta straight away, sending a curt telephone message home about being called away. He had strode into the studio and taken Henrietta in his arms, holding her to him with a fierceness that was new in their relationship.

There had been a quick, startled wonder in her eyes. She had freed herself from his arms and had made him coffee. And as she moved about the studio she had thrown out desultory questions. Had he come, she asked, straight from the hospital?

He didn't want to talk about the hospital. He wanted to forget that the hospital and Mrs. Crabtree and Ridgeway's disease and all the rest of the caboodle existed.

But, at first unwillingly, then more fluently, he answered her questions. And presently he was striding up and down, pouring out a spate of technical explanations and surmises. Once or twice he paused, trying to simplify to explain.

"You see, you have to get a reaction—"

"Yes, yes, the D.L. reaction has to be positive. I understand that. Go on."

He said sharply: "How do you know about the D.L. reaction?"

"I got a book—"

"What book? Whose?"

She motioned toward the small book table. He snorted.

"Scobell? Scobell's no good. He's fundamentally unsound. Look here, if you want to read—don't—"

She interrupted him. "I only want to understand some of the terms you use—" enough so as to understand you without making you stop to explain everything the whole time. Go on. I'm following you all right."

"Well," he said doubtfully, "remember Scobell's unsound." He went on talking. He talked for two hours and a half. Reviewing the set-backs, analyzing the possibilities, outlining possible theories. He was hardly conscious of Henrietta's presence. And yet, more than once, as he hesitated, her quick intelligence took him a step on the way, seeing, almost before he did, what he was hesitating to advance. He was interested now, and his belief in himself was creeping back. He had been right—the main theory was correct—and there were ways, more ways than one, of combating the toxic symptoms.

And then, suddenly, he was tired out. He'd got it all clear now. He'd got on to it tomorrow morning. He'd ring up Neil, tell him to combine the two solutions and try that. Yes—try that. Heavens, he wasn't going to be beaten!

"My Lord," he said abruptly. "My Lord, I'm tired."

And he had flung himself down and slept—slept like the dead, (To Be Continued)

My New York
By MEL HEIMER

NEW YORK—I was wandering down Eighth ave. on a recent Friday night, and since Friday is fight night at Madison Square Garden there was a certain nervous, festive air to the street. Crowds were surging across the pavement, cops were sweating and cursing, trying to keep order, taxicabs were jockeying for position, and on the street corners were the inevitable little knots of guys with dark, curly sideburns and gaudy ties talking about why Larkin looks so good against second-raters only he's a bum against anybody halfway fair like Williams. It looked like quite a street at the moment, but all I could think of was that the festive air was misleading. Of all New York's streets, Eighth ave. is perhaps the least attractive.

A thousand streets criss-cross my town like a gigantic lattice-work, and most of them have some characteristic that make you remember them, usually fondly, if you are corny and romantically inclined like me. But Eighth ave. is a cheap street. There is no flavor to it. It brightens up on fight nights, for the ring crowd brings the impact of a grotesque, shabby oxygen tent wherever it goes—but in the daytime Eighth ave. is a mean little street.

Park ave. is elegance and Third ave. is yesterday's saloon and Lenox ave. is easy street, the happy road of the happy people—but Eighth ave. is a lane that seems to have been born out of the Thirties.

The Thirties were a gray, depressing, suffocating time of life; I know, for those were my early, registering years on earth and I had the feeling always of living with a stone on my chest. Maybe that makes me a subject for Freud—but anyway, Eighth ave. is a gray, depressing street.

The street is full of saloons and hook shops and little delicatessens and two-bit movie houses. However, these do not make it what it is, for there are other Manhattan streets compounded of those elements that yet manage to come up with flavor and tang. But there is no life to this street. It is black after block of buildings and newsstands. It is like a movie set, waiting patiently for the lights and cameras to come, but they never do.

FOURTEENTH ST., MANHATTAN'S BARGAIN BASEMENT, has many of the same components as Eighth ave., but somehow they fuse differently and the Frankenstein monster comes alive. The fat housewives trying on girdles in S. Klein's fabulous store, Luchow's old-world restaurant, the one-arm chopouses, the liquor stores, the union headquarters—these make much the same sort of witches' brew as the dull little jigsaw pieces of Eighth ave., but whereas one brew simmers and bubbles, the other is flat and cold.

Streets in the Village, of course, are rampant with color; my favorite is Patchin Place, a neat little alley off W. Tenth st. that is a pet subject for photographers and is rumored to be mined with secret passageways and haunted rooms.

Up on the East Side, Sutton and Beekman Places are not quite what one would imagine. They are THE social streets of the day, yet they doze quietly and neatly in the sun and aren't austere at all. Park ave. is—well, Park ave.

In the Bronx, the Grand Concourse is a flamboyant, tawdry highway lined with apartments that seem to be full of blue tile and glass, and down in midtown Fifty-Seventh st. there are art galleries and thrift shops and Carnegie Hall and places where the eating of a hamburger is elevated to an art.

THERE IS SOMETHING in all of these streets and in a thousand more, and you can pick any one out and prowl it slowly and carefully while the hours pass. But Eighth ave. holds no lure. Broadway is a block to the east, but it is like night and day.

Eighth ave. is the dirty little brother who spits at people and uses four-letter words and has no charm at all.

Broadway is harum-scarum and flashy and it wears incongruously huge, and undoubtedly phony, diamonds, but at least it has warmth and a pulse to it. Eighth ave. lies sullen and silent in the smoky city sun, dead to the world.

Impressive Double Ring Ceremony Is Held In Church

At an impressive double ring ceremony performed Thursday, June 26, at 7:30 p. m. in the Ashville Methodist church, Miss Willma Jean Whitehead, daughter of Mrs. William J. Whitehead, Ashville, and the late Mr. Whitehead, became the bride of Frank Livingston Hinkle, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Hinkle, Ashville.

The Rev. Walter C. Peters, Marietta, formerly of Ashville, read the nuptial vows before an altar adorned with white gladioli, delphinium, lilies, feverfew and baby's breath, banked with ferns and large vases and baskets of white flower arrangements. Two seven-branch candelabra and four standards with white tapers cast a soft glow over the wedding scene. Altar rail was entwined with foliage and around the hall lights were festoons of huckleberry and arbor-vitae.

THE BRIDE came down the white aisle where each pew was marked in ribbon, wearing a Dutchess ivory satin gown, styled with a sweetheart neckline outlined with seed pearls, long fitted bodice trimmed in seed pearls. Bouffant skirt terminated into a long full train. Her three tiered full length veil of imported French illusion was caught by a satin bonnet trimmed with seed pearls. She carried a white Testament topped by a white purple-throated orchid surrounded with white roses and a shower of white satin ribbons knotted with white rose buds falling in a cascade. Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls and matching earrings, gifts from the bridegroom. Miss Mary Ellen Hines, Duval, attended the bride as maid of honor. Miss Doris Hartman, Miss Millicent Krout, Lancaster, Miss Lois Sanders, Leesburg, and Mrs. Frank Bradburn, Ashville, sister of the bridegroom, served as bridesmaids.

THEIR GOWNS of tissue taffeta were styled alike with an off-the-shoulder neckline, narrow bertha, short full sleeves, fitted bodice, full bouffant skirt with a bustle back. Miss Hines wore a yellow gown and carried a colonial bouquet of pink roses and blue delphinium, centered with a yellow tuberous begonia, tied with a blue bow. Miss Hartman and Mrs. Bradburn in moss green gowns carried colonial bouquets of pink roses and delphinium, surrounded by a pink lace ruffle. Miss Krout and Miss Sanders in apricot gowns had colonial bouquets of pink roses with delphinium and green lace ruffle and bow. All the attendants wore matching garlands of rose buds and ribbons in their hair, pearls, and white gloves. They also wore bracelets, gifts from the bride. While the couple knelt in prayer on a white satin pillow, Mrs. Hosler sang, "The Lord's Prayer".

MRS. WHITEHEAD, mother of the bride, greeted her guests in a hyacinth blue floor length gown. Her hat was of gathered white illusion centered with pink and blue flowers. Mrs. Hinkle, mother of the bridegroom, wore a dinner gown of pastel blue floral net. Her small hat was fash-

THE BRIDE'S table was centered by a three-tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom, flanked by white burning tapers and silver bowl arrangements of white roses and greenery. Mrs. DeVoss presided at the crystal punch bowl, and Mrs. Patrick at the silver coffee service.

The home was attractively decorated throughout with baskets and arrangements of summer flowers. During the reception soft piano music was presented by Miss Clara Lou Peters, Ashville.

When the new couple departed on an extended wedding trip through the South and eastern states the bride was wearing a suit of toast colored sheer wool. Her accessories were brown reptile and matching brown straw hat. At her shoulder was pinned the corsage from her bridal bouquet.

The new Mrs. Hinkle was graduated from Ashville high school, and College of Dentistry of Ohio State University, Columbus, in Dental Hygiene. She is a member of Alpha Kappa Gamma, Kappa Phi, and Ohio State Junior Dental Hygienists.

GIANT SLUGGERS
MENACE HOMER
MARK OF YANKS

Indians Win But Feller Is Forced To Quit With
Pulled Muscle

NEW YORK, July 2 The major league home run record, that proud citadel sculptured by home-run hammering New York Yankee bats in 1936 trembled visibly today following a devastating assault by the New York Giants.

Eleven years ago, a powerful Yankee team juggernauted to the first of four consecutive pennants on the strength of a record-establishing 182 four baggers. These were the fence-busting days of Lou Gehrig, Joe DiMaggio (a rookie), Bill Dickey, Tony Lazzeri, George Selkirk, Frank Crosetti, and Red Rolfe.

This season, the Giants have banded together a powerful, and up to now an almost unstoppable home run hitting aggregation. Last night, five Giants rocked three Boston pitchers for home runs in a 16 hit barrage that netted a 15-to-3 triumph over the league leaders.

Johnny Mize (21), Willard Marshall (17), Walker Cooper (17), Bobby Thomson (10), and Buddy Kerr (3) hit for the circuit, each time with a man on base.

THE GIANTS now have hit 90 home runs in 62 games, an average of 1.451 round trippers a game. If the Giants maintain this pace they can rack up a total approaching 220 home runs. Should the all-time mark elude Mel Ott's record, the National League home run standard of 171 hardly seems safe.

The most plaintive wails of those who see no pennant chance for the Giants has concerned poor pitching. No one can refute the condemning testimony of inconsistent mound work.

IN ANOTHER National League scuffle, the second place Brooklyn Dodgers flubbed an opportunity to gain the senior loop top rung. The Philadelphia Phillies organized a five run rally in the sixth inning to defeat the Dodgers, 5 to 3.

Jackie Robinson stretched his consecutive hitting streak to 18 games by singling in the sixth. Del Ennis, Philly outfielder, who had compiled a string of 19 straight games in which he got a hit was finally stopped.

The fourth place St. Louis Cardinals edged the cellar-dwelling Pittsburgh Pirates, 2 to 1, on Erv Dusak's ninth inning home run off Ernie Bonham.

The Chicago Cubs and the Cincinnati Reds were not scheduled.

IN THE AMERICAN League, the Detroit Tigers, behind the three-hit pitching of Al Benton, scored an unearned run in the eighth inning off Ed Lopat to win 2 to 1 over the Chicago White Sox.

The Cleveland Indians defeated the St. Louis Browns 9 to 3, but their fireballing ace, Bob Feller was forced to retire in the second inning because of a pulled muscle in his back.

The other four clubs in the league were not scheduled.

Jimmy Picklesimer got two of the four Williamsport hits. Bill Elliott gave the losers six hits.

PAUL "SNOW" Seymour won the base circling contest, rounding the sacks in 9.2 seconds. Each player was given two chances. In his second try Snow's time was 9.9.

Jack Hennis was second. He fell down his first try and ran the bases in 9.5 the second time. Paul Nance missed second base his first try, then ran it in 9.6 to place third. Other contestants were Bob Glick, 10 and 10.1; Dustin Stinson, 9.8 and 9.7.

Seymour won a pair of shoes from Merit shoe store, gallon of ice cream from Isaly's, case of "pop" from Andy's Sandwich Engineers. Hennis received $2 from Bob Tootle and Eddie Richardson at the pop stand; Nance won seven quarts of milk from Blue Ribbon Dairy.

MAYOR BACKS CAMPAIGN TO HALT ACCIDENTS

Gordon Issues Proclamation Urging Motorists To Check On Autos

Observance of Ohio Traffic Safety Month began Tuesday in Circleville and will continue through July 31. Police Chief William F. McCrady said all police officers will take part in the drive to cut down traffic accidents. State Highway Patrolmen L. G. Ridenour and Clyde E. Wells, stationed in the Circleville area, are also cooperating in the campaign.

Mayor Ben H. Gordon issued an official proclamation urging wide observance of the drive.

The proclamation follows:

WHEREAS, there is through out the State of Ohio a mounting toll of highway traffic deaths and injuries; and

Whereas, the reduction of this serious menace is a matter of individual responsibility of every citizen; and

Whereas, the traffic accident toll is the direct result of mechanically unsound cars that are operated by careless drivers; and

Whereas, the Police officers of the State of Ohio, under the sponsorship of the Ohio State Chief of Police and the State Highway Patrol have instituted a Traffic Safety Check Program; and

Whereas, the Police Traffic Safety Check Program, to have its fullest measure of success in saving lives and preventing injuries, must have the complete support of the entire public;

Now, therefore, I, Ben H. Gordon, Mayor of the City of Circleville, do hereby proclaim the period between July 1 and July 31, 1947, as a period for the correction of mechanically faulty automobiles, and a period during which drivers will pledge themselves to learn safe driving practices; and I do urge and advise the citizens of this state, both individually and through their organized groups, to cooperate with the police of the State of Ohio to bring the fullest possible effectiveness to the Police Traffic Safety Check Slogan, "Check your Driving — Check your Car — Check Accidents."

TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH

Registered U. S. Patent Office

A Flower That Gives Double Value

By DEAN HALLIDAY Distributed by Central Press Association

LUNARIA, commonly known as Honesty, more than lives up to its latter name by giving double value to the home gardener who plants it. During the summer, Honesty lends color to the garden, with its gay sprays of lilac-purple flowers. In the winter the attractive satiny seed pods are used in winter bouquets. The interesting flat, parchment-like seed pods are illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, as are the plant's summer flowers. The pods are about an inch or an inch and a half in diameter. Because the seeds can be seen through the semi-transparent covering of the seed pods, the plant was given the name of "Honesty."

The more common varieties of Lunaria are biennial and produce flowers and seed pods the second year. There is also a perennial but its seed pods are not as showy. Most gardeners grow the plant for its seed pods, although the flowers themselves are extremely attractive.

The seed pods should be allowed to mature fully before cutting. They should then be stored in a dry place for a week to harden off. The outer, ragged covering can then be easily removed, and the shining pods are ready to be used in bouquets. They will last all winter.

The plant's scientific name, Lunaria, means moon in Latin. It was so named because the silvery white partition of the large seed pods suggests the round, silvery moon. In addition, to its common name of Honesty, it is also known as Moonwort and Satin Flower.

The different varieties are natives of Europe and western Asia but are easily grown in this country and have been for long years.

Does Stomach Gas and Bloat Make You Feel Miserable?

If so, here is how you may get blessed relief in freeing your stomach from this nervous distress. It works this way: Everytime food enters the stomach a vital gastric juice must flow normally to break-up certain food particles; else the food may ferment. Sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a morbid, touchy, fretful, peevish, nervous condition, loss of appetite, underweight, restless sleep, weakness. To get real relief you must increase the flow of this vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in increasing this flow when it is too little or scanty due to a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients. Also, SSS Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia—so with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red-blood you should eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better. Avoid punishing yourself with over-doses of soda and other alkalis to counteract gas and bloating when what you so clearly need is SSS Tonic to help you digest food for body strength and repair. Don't wait! Join the host of happy people SSS Tonic has helped. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle of SSS Tonic from your drug store today. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Blackwell and Brecheen Head NL All Star Cast

NEW YORK, July 2 — Harry (The Cat) Brecheen, who played the wily feline to the American League's "mouse" in the last World Series, was one of seven National League pitchers named today for action, one week hence, in the 1947 all star game at Chicago.

Another was Ewell Blackwell, Cincinnati's no-hit and low-hit specialist, who leads both leagues via his 13 and 2 record with a club chronically below .500.

The remaining five, representing Manager Eddie Dyer's most astute judgment in personal values, are Warren Spahn and Johnny Sain, of the Boston Braves, Ralph Branca, of the Dodgers, George Munger, of Mr. Dyer's own Cardinals, and Philadelphia's antique Lynwood "Schoolboy" Rowe.

THIS TALENTED array, according to the revised system of selection, was the only discretionary action permitted Dyer in connection with his all star personnel.

Simultaneously, the league formally announced its opening

Gallaher's Drug Stores

In 1759 Enoch Noyes invented a fine and coarse tooth comb, which was named "louse-trap." However, it launched America's first comb industry. Later Noyes introduced the "case comb," a best seller for years. Many of his co-workers established factories in Leominster, Mass., which today leads the world in comb manufacture.

CLINTON P. ANDERSON Secretary of Agriculture Says:

American Women -

Your Used Fats Are Still Needed!

America's homemakers have saved and turned in over 600 million pounds of used cooking fats since 1942. This is an average of nearly 20 pounds for each family in the United States. It is a record of which every woman can be proud.

However, it is still necessary to conserve every pound of fat, since the over-all fat supply situation is little better now than it was last year when we were desperately short, particularly of industrial fats.

Manufacture of many of the things we all use and wear in our daily lives requires industrial fats or the products of industrial fats. Used cooking fats turned in by American women have been and continue to represent an important part of our total industrial fats supply. Every pound of salvaged fat helps meet the need.

IN MEMORIAM
In loving memory of my dear husband, Raymond Peters, who died just one year ago today July 2, 1946. This day brings back sad memories of our loved one gone to rest. And those who think of him each day are the ones who loved him best. No one knows the silent heartache. Only those who have lost can tell. For the grief we bear in silence. Friends may think that we forgot him when they see us smile. But little do they know the sorrow; That is hid behind a smile.

GARDEN BRIEFS

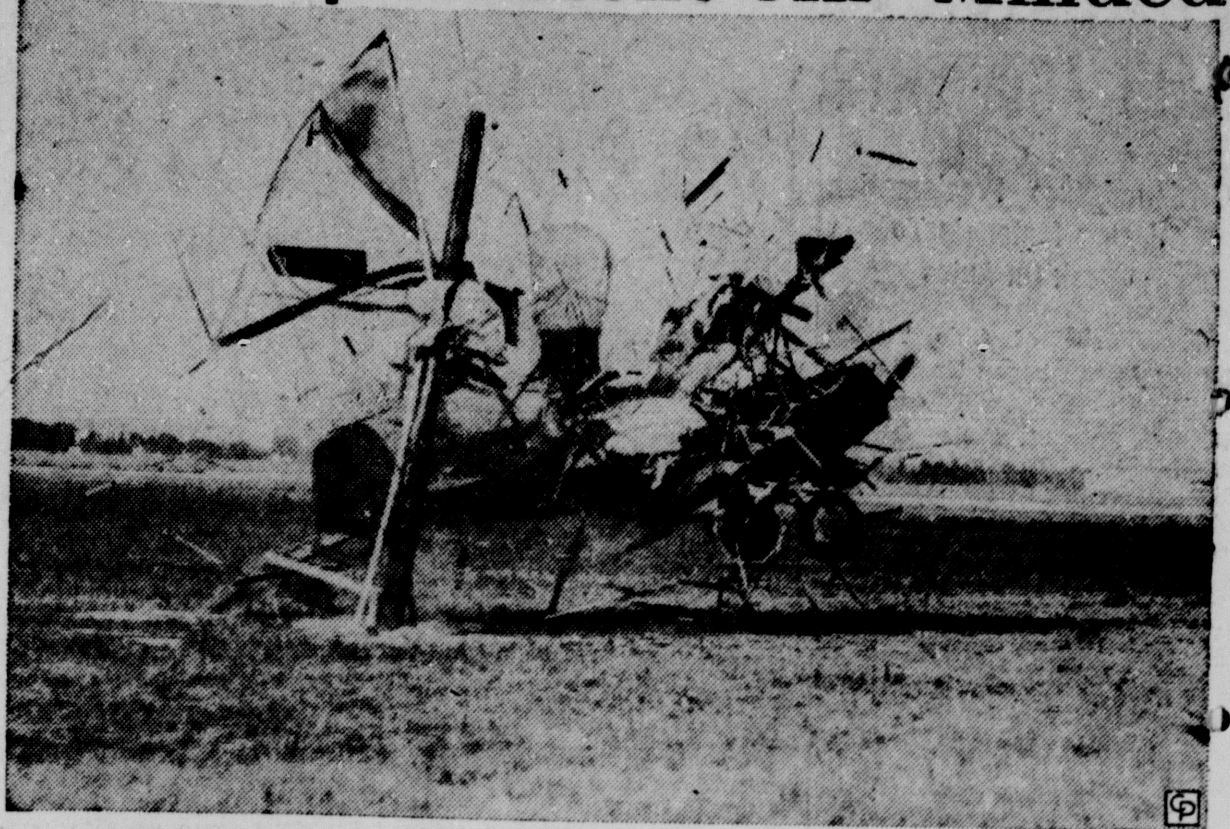

Early cabbage does not keep as well as late cabbage, therefore, start using it just as soon as the heads become firm. To prevent the heads from bursting cut some of the roots to check growth.

Remember that bigger phlox heads will result from (1) reducing the number of stalks, (2) copious feeding and (3) plenty of water poured into the soil around them.

Weeds are still one of the biggest garden problems. Keep at them. Don't let them get ahead of you. Don't allow any to seed. They're easiest to take out by hoeing when small.

If you have a flock of chicken in addition to a home vegetable garden, grow some of the new chicken lettuce. When cut, this lettuce immediately starts to grow again. The leaves can be pulled from each stem like kale.

Show Business Takes to Clouds To Keep Citizens Air-Minded

WHAM! POW! ZOWIE!—Warren King turns a plane into toothpicks without sustaining a scratch.

By WILLIAM RUTLEDGE III

Central Press Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD—Show business is spiraling up into the stratosphere, and through the medium of aerial entertainment the American public will see the latest inventions and discoveries. Popularization of aviation will avoid a repetition of the apathy toward aerial possibilities that set in within the United States after World War I.

The leading aerial show outfit is Sammy Mason's unit, the Hollywood Hawks, which is based at a Van Nuys, Cal., airport.

"These shows will build up confidence in the airplane among the rank and file of people," says Mason. "Stunts and acrobatics will stimulate their imagination so they will realize that there are great possibilities in the air, far greater than that of just getting to a distant point in a hurry."

The Hollywood Hawks is a show unit that consists of only six performers, but on its programs more than 300 planes take part. The United States Navy takes advantage of the shows to demonstrate new rocket devices, latest in jet-powered planes, and to display radio-guided missiles.

CONTRAST to these demonstrations are antics performed by Warren King in specially built "Jenny" of World War I vintage. The plane is an exact replica of the "crates" flown against the Kaiser's armies in 1918, with the secret exception that the horsepower of the engine behind the propeller is more than twice that of the first flying machines to be utilized in war.

Not only do the dramatics in the skies carry the grim reminders of past wars, but they also serve to show peacetime possibilities of a plane. Several aircraft manufacturers demonstrate their latest models, something like the auto makers did in their gala pre-war shows. The public became auto-conscious almost in direct proportion to its degree of familiarity with the horseless carriage. The same principle may function to promote utilization of the air for a thousand and one uses.

Cleverness and dexterity in the air were foremost factors in Uncle Sam's magnificent showing in World War II, Mason says. "If we are to hold our greatly advanced position in aviation that is ours today, we must educate the public to an intimate familiarity with planes—just as the automobile manufacturers did in the era preceding the war," he contends. There is scarcely a phase of American life into which the plane cannot project itself, Mason declared. Planes can be used in farming to sow seed and spray insecticides, planes can be used in fishing to spot schools of potential catch and planes can be used to rush perishable products to distant markets. The aerial show itself is an example of the plane being used as a vehicle of entertainment.

Mason was rated during the war as a top flying instructor and proved his rating at Rankin Field, Tulare, Cal., by tutoring more aces than any other instructor. His pupils included the late Richard Bong, the No. 1 ace in the American ranks. He holds an all-time aerial instruction record, having spent six hours a day in the air as an instructor for four years. Mason began flying at the age of 15 and at 19 was a full-fledged pro. Rather than the cocky, devil-may-care young man who tries to defy the jinxes and perils of his career, he is a very religious and humble and an exemplary showman, even abstaining from smoking.

Liquor and night life are just "out" as far as Mason is concerned. His wife and children in a modest home are his major concerns. He says he just does not dare tempt bad luck in his profession, which involves the constant exposure to instant death.

Even Mason's ace comedian, Ray Goudy, who can do just about anything with a plane but climb a tree, does not dare to get reckless on his indulgences or habits. Sammy tells all in his troupe that they need every faculty, at razor edge sharpness, to insure their good luck in their shows.

Assignment: America

Irked but undiscouraged, the other two youngsters got out more coins and kept trying. At first, they had some trouble, but they soon got the knack of it and were killing almost as many as freckle-face.

And always, any score approaching the champ's mark was the signal for noisy, jubilant glee. They hopped up and down excitedly and cheered as they "atom-bombed" the hapless city again and again.

All told, the three kids managed to eliminate several hundred thousand civilians before their coins were all gone.

Now, after all, kids have played with real and imaginary weapons since time began, and have "killed" each other in happy childhood games all day long. However, usually their warlike actions followed some standardized cops-and-robbers or cowboys-and-Indians routine, with the eventual victims equally well-armed and such theoretical villains that they deserved what they were coming to them. And usually the pure and innocent were protected.

But, with this profitable little "atom bomb" weapon, the red head, the towhead and the freckle-face happily competed to see who could kill the most thousands of innocent, unarmed and unsuspecting men, women and children.

It sort of made your blood run cold.

towards a happy medium between over-arrangements and swing. "The modern style, a combination of Kostalanetz and, say, Tommy Dorsey," says Case, "has fiddles and rich music, but it also has a good beat, a dance beat."

Now it's Jackie Kelk, Aldrich Family's "Homer," who may be a disc jockey. A local New York station has asked the nasal voiced comic to emcee a daily vote-gram on which only novelty records, like Danny Kaye's and Spike Jones' would be used.

Radio stars, like their millions of listeners, have certain writing habits and idiosyncrasies. For example, Sammy Kaye uses only green ink. Bing Crosby signs all contracts with the same pen, which he's had for many years. Jay Jostyn (Mr. District Attorney) likes the new fangled ball-bearing pens even though he's changed his three times to get a workable one. Bob Hope has a combination pencil and cigaret lighter. Bud "Superman" Collyer never seems to find anything available but a pencil stub. Jack Benny has received dozens of expensive fountain pens as gifts but still prefers a modest $2 quill a fan sent him. Ralph Edwards, of "Truth or Consequences," uses a pencil which can project five different colored leads: Paul Lavalle uses his arranging pen and ink for all purposes. Ted Collins has a gold pencil which is constantly running out of lead. Red Skelton kids his friends by offering them a pen which he's filled with milk. City and County Residents To Observe Independence Day Anniversary Friday with their families and friends.

City offices and the public library will remain closed Friday but will be open on Saturday.

The office of the Agricultural Conservation Committee is among the offices which will remain closed Friday and Saturday.

BIGGEST HOLIDAY event of the county will be the annual July 4 celebration at Ashville.

Many Circlevilleans are planning holiday trips out of town, while many former Circleville residents will pay a visit to their former home community on the holiday.

Many other Circleville area residents will enjoy outings, motor trips, fishing expeditions, or indulgence in sports and recreational activities of various kinds over the Fourth of July holiday weekend.

All indications are that the Circleville district will have a "safe and sane" Fourth of July—insofar as the setting off of explosives is concerned—and while law-enforcement officials voiced a warning to motorists to "drive carefully and thus avoid accidents" they said they would keep their fingers crossed and hope for the best.

INCIDENTALLY the holiday known as the Fourth of July could be celebrated on July 2, July 19, Aug. 2, or even on Dec. 6 as well as on July 4, according to historical facts set forth in the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

As early as Dec. 6, 1775, Congress had declared its independence of the British parliament, and on June 7, Richard Henry Lee, delegate from Virginia to the Continental Congress, made the motion "that these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent states."

This resolution was adopted on July 2. What is now called the Declaration of Independence was actually an explanation of this resolution of independence of the British crown and was adopted on July 4, 1776.

THE DECLARATION of Independence was not ordered engrossed—copied in document form—and signed, however, until July 19, and most of the signatures were placed on it on Aug. 2, although at least six were attached still later. One of the signers, Thomas McKean, added his signature to the document five years after it was adopted, according to the Britannica. "For 101 years after the Declaration was proclaimed it had no permanent home," says the encyclopedia. "During its wanderings, it found shelter in ten cities and five states, twice narrowly escaped destruction by fire, and in both the Revolutionary War and the War of 1812 was nearly captured by the British.

"In 1894, when the text of the manuscript had been dimmed by more than 50 years' exposure to light and its signatures damaged by too frequent rolling of the parchment, the document was placed in a safe in the State Department library. Finally, in 1921, it was removed to the Library of Congress, where it is on permanent exhibition in a shrine specially constructed for its preservation and safe-keeping."

The Declaration of Independence was written in its original form by Thomas Jefferson, then 33 years old, who later became the third president of the United States. The final Declaration as adopted by Congress differs only in details from Jefferson's draft.

Council Would Ban 24-Hour Parking On City Streets

FIRST READING GIVEN BILL TO CURB MOTORISTS

Councilmen Favor Funds For Park; Hospital Overtime Pay Proposed

An ordinance banning the parking of autos on Circleville streets for longer than 24 hours was given its first reading in city council Tuesday night.

The council also heard the initial reading of an ordinance authorizing payment of overtime wages to Berger hospital employees. The five members of council present at the session went on record as favoring the appropriation of $500 to the Ted Lewis Park to help pay operating costs in 1947.

Councilmen George L. Crites and John Eshelman were absent from Tuesday night's meeting.

AFTER CLERK Fred Nicholas had read to council the ordinance against prolonged parking on the streets it was emphasized that the legislation is aimed at prohibiting the "storage" of autos in city streets for more than 24 successive hours. The ordinance provides for a fine of from $5 to $25 for each offense.

City Solicitor George Gerhardt, who drafted the ordinance on instructions from council, said the legislation was designed specifically to remedy the situation on South Pickaway street between East Franklin and East Mound streets and that it is patterned after a Columbus ordinance. However, Solicitor Gerhardt pointed out, if enacted into law the ordinance will be effective throughout Circleville. At the June 3 council meeting several residents of South Pickaway street attended and voiced protest of what they termed the use of Pickaway street for garage and storage purposes by Winner's Garage, 205 South Pickaway street. At that time Solicitor Gerhardt reminded council that the city had no ordinance covering such a situation.

THE ORDINANCE providing for overtime pay for hospital workers stipulates the overtime wage scale as $1 an hour for superintendent, $1 an hour for nurses, $1 an hour for technicians, 50 cents an hour for nurse aides, and 50 cents an hour for cooks.

A motion to appropriate $500 for the Ted Lewis Park was passed by unanimous vote following a discussion of a request voiced by Mayor Ben H. Gordon and by Robert G. Col. (Continued on Page Five)

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

There is some indication that before the Summer is over, Hawaiians will be entitled to share our joys and tax rates.

The Republicans are pushing the bill for statehood. Republicans can always use an extra state going into an election year.

If they don't get Hawaii in '48, they'll try Alaska in '52 and Staten Island in '56.

Third party talk is plentiful these days. It is felt that a splendid ticket could be made up of men who couldn't make any other ticket.

Maybe they should enlist a few youngsters. A psychologist says men reach their peak intelligence at the age of 17—at 18 they begin to slip. Some get married and some go to work.

Anyway Alf Landon has been up talking with Tom Dewey about '48 prospects. They agreed that it will be a fine year if it doesn't rain.

Blinker Traffic Lights Opposed By Councilmen

Proposed ordinance to expend $300 for the purchase and installation of seven "blinker" traffic lights in Circleville was defeated at Tuesday night's city council session. The roll-call followed a sharp oral clash among opposing councilmen relative to the merits of the "blinker" lights.

The council meeting was enlivened by Councilman Boyd L. Horn who sharply rapped the type of street lights in some of the outlying residential areas in Circleville. He said those particular lights "look like bird boxes upside down."

Four ordinances were given their first readings by Clerk Fred Nicholas. Four other ordinances were read for the second time. To become law an ordinance must be given three readings before the roll-call and the vote unless the ordinance is acted upon as an emergency measure under suspension of the rules.

PRECEDING the balloting on the "blinker" ordinance Councilman Ray Cook, who introduced

MORE PEOPLE MOVED OUT OF PATH OF FLOOD

ST. LOUIS, July 2—Coast Guard evacuation operations along the flood-swollen Mississippi went ahead today with the removal of 11 families from the little town of Valmeyer in the Harrisonville levee district south of St. Louis.

A new defense line along the Illinois side of the river from East Carondelet, Ill., to Gorham and Nuernet downstream has been set up by Army engineers. Four levee failures caused an estimated $12,000,000 worth of damage to farmlands in the area and left an estimated 5 to 10 thousand persons homeless.

A new danger spot, in addition to Valmeyer, threatened in Perry county on the Missouri side opposite the Degognia district. Army engineers attempted today to bolster the levees in this critical site that protected 23,500 acres of rich farmland. One thousand persons have been evacuated from Claryville, a community in Thisk county.

POLICE HUNTING FIREBUG AFTER BARN BLAZES

Damage Small At Buildings Believed Ignited By Use Of Paper

Declaring that two Circleville fires Wednesday morning were of incendiary origin Police Chief William F. McCrady and Fire Chief Talmer Wise warned that a "firebug" is loose in the city.

Chief McCrady announced the launching of an intensive city-wide police hunt for a man charged with setting fire to two barns early Wednesday.

At 1:30 a. m. firemen were called to extinguish a blazing barn at the rear of the Leonard Morgan home at 133 East Mill street. Fire Chief Wise said the fire was of incendiary origin and that the loss was small.

CHIEF McCRADY asserted that the Morgan barn was ignited by the deliberate lighting of some waste paper and that a man was observed in the act of incendiaryism and was also seen running from the scene.

Firemen were called at 4:40 to the home of Fred Brunner at 317 South Court street where a barn at the rear was in flames. Chief Wise said this blaze was extinguished, also with small loss, and that it also was the work of a "firebug."

Belief that both barn fires were set by the same arsonist was expressed by Chief McCrady and Chief Wise. They said waste paper was also used to ignite the Brunner barn.

A SERIES of incendiary barn fires occurred in August, 1946, in Circleville, and the "firebug" was never apprehended, it was pointed out by Chief McCrady. The Brunner and Morgan barn are situated about two blocks apart on the south side of Circleville. Chief Wise said the loss in both instances was covered by insurance.

The state marshal's office, Chief Wise said, notified him that a deputy fire marshal will be dispatched to Circleville to conduct an investigation.

WARM AND HUMID IS GUESS FOR 4TH WEATHER

By International News Service "How will the Fourth be?" is the weather questions most Ohioans are asking today.

Weathermen said they could venture only a tentative forecast. "It looks as if the holiday will be partly cloudy, warm and humid, with some possibility of showers late in the day," they reported.

Today brought moderate temperatures and scudding white clouds against the blue backdrop. Blankets for sleepers will be in order tonight.

Rising temperatures are in store for the state tomorrow.

Marshall Says 'Voice' Vital In Foreign Policy

WASHINGTON, July 2—Secretary of State Marshall warned congress today that he will have "serious handicaps" in carrying forward America's drive for peace if authorization for his "Voice of America" program is delayed until next year.

CONFERENCE ON MARSHALL PLAN ENDS IN PARIS

PARIS, July 2—Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov brought the Paris conference on European aid under the Marshall plan to a dismal end today when he left the three-power parley after five days of fruitless debate with England and France.

Shortly after he warned in a final statement that the Anglo-French part in the Marshall plan "would lead to no good result," the Russian statesman was escorted from the conference room by French Foreign Minister Bidault.

Molotov also forecast the danger of an East-West division, and accused the United States of "seeking to establish their domination" over Europe.

Molotov flatly rejected the French counter-proposal which Bidault had advanced last night as the "last effort" at conciliation.

City and County Residents To Observe Independence Day Anniversary Friday

Fourth of July, 1947, the 171st anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, will be widely observed Friday in the Circleville area.

The Fourth of July is a national holiday and banks and financial institutions will remain closed all day, along with federal offices, and the Sunday and holiday schedule will be observed at the Circleville postoffice. There will be no mail deliveries except special delivery letters. The general delivery, stamp, money order, registration and postal savings windows will remain closed.

Thirty members of Company I, Circleville unit of the Ohio National Guard, Wednesday had received their first pay and part of their equipment.

First pay checks were issued Tuesday evening at the regular weekly drill session. Clothing also was issued to members of the company.

Issuing of equipment followed federal approval of the unit several weeks ago. Pay checks are retroactive to early in May, when the unit was organized.

FARMERS GET WEATHER HELP

Weekly Crop Report Says Late Fall Necessary To Save Corn

COLUMBUS, O., July 2—The sun has finally come to the aid of Ohio farmers after hiding behind rain clouds for so many weeks that the state's scheduled corn crop has been drastically reduced.

The weather bureau reported today that last week's rainfall was sufficient and furthermore, had cooperated with the farmers by arriving mostly at night or on Sunday afternoon to minimize interference with late planting.

UNLESS THERE is an unusually late or favorable autumn, the weather bureau predicts that some of the corn now in the ground was planted too late to reach maturity. In some sections, acreage planted is from 10 to 40 per cent less than had been expected. The weekly crop report said:

"Corn in central Ohio is still mostly less than a foot high, though the best is two feet or more. But in a good many fields, corn is now just coming up."

Plantings of soybeans, which have been substituted for corn in many cases, is nearly completed in the southern and central sections of the state and is progressing rapidly in the northern area.

ON OTHER crops, the bureau reported:

Wheat—Advanced rapidly last week, with some ready for harvesting in southern Ohio and coloring as far north as Ashland and Lima.

Tomatoes—Planting for canning about completed in northwestern section.

Oats—Still green, but headed. Short straw reported in many cases.

Tobacco—Advancing well. Tree fruits—Large crops expected in northern Ohio.

REPUBLICANS HINT THEY WILL WORK FOR TAX CUT

WASHINGTON, July 2—Senate GOP leaders indicated today they were swinging toward a decision to push through a new Jan. 1, 1948 tax reduction bill before congress adjourns this month.

House and senate leaders scheduled a conference on the legislative agenda for this afternoon, with the No. 1 question whether the senate has the "sure" votes to enact the tax bill over a second presidential veto. Both sides agreed to make a final decision by Thursday.

Surplus Of $754,000,000 Less Than Estimated By Truman In April

WASHINGTON, July 2—Treasury Secretary John Snyder announced today that the United States government closed the fiscal year 1947 with a budget surplus of 754 million dollars—the first surplus since 1930.

Snyder also said that the public debt during the fiscal year ended June 30 was slashed by over 11 and a half billion dollars.

The three-quarter billion dollar surplus was a half billion dollars less than was estimated by President Truman in April.

However, it was the first surplus since 1930 when President Herbert Hoover closed the fiscal year 738 million dollars in the black.

HIGHEST SURPLUS in American history occurred in 1927 when President Coolidge chalked up a one billion, 155 million dollar excess of receipts over expenditures.

In announcing that the U. S. government is again operating in the black after 17 years in the red, Snyder said:

"The President has constantly taken the initiative in cutting expenditures consistent with the national safety and welfare."

"Whenever possible the President has regarded the appropriations granted by congress as ceilings, rather than as targets. "In numerous cases he has cut expenditures drastically below those authorized by congress."

"Since taking office, President Truman has recommended to the congress the cancellation of appropriations to the congress totaling over 65 million dollars."

SNYDER ASSERTED himself not yet in favor of a tax cut. He asserted:

"Congress has not put me in a position to change my mind a bit."

The secretary expressed himself "delighted" with the budget surplus, but stated he "had hoped it would be higher." He said the surplus probably will be applied to the public debt "so as to cut out big interest payments."

SNYDER SAID that in the fiscal year just closed total government expenditures amounted to 42 billion, 505 million dollars—a one-third cut from the preceding fiscal year's expenditures and a decline of nearly 60 per cent.

From the wartime peak of over 100 billion dollars reached in 1945.

The 1946 fiscal year ended with a deficit of over 20 and one-half billion dollars.

Receipts for fiscal '47 totaled 43 billion, 238 million dollars—759 million dollars more than the estimates released by the President on April 19.

SAFETY BOARD WARNS CONGRESS FUNDS NEEDED

WASHINGTON, July 2—President Truman's special board of inquiry on air safety today warned that unless congress provides sufficient funds for safe flying aids "the tragic pattern" of air accidents will continue.

James M. Landis, chairman of the President's special board, today made a second interim report emphasizing that "an emergency situation" "provoked the board's action."

The board said that unless congress provides adequate funds for the installation of safety devices that air accidents "inevitably" will continue.

ville for city cash to pay the park caretaker.

Mayor Gordon reminded the council that no sum for the park was included in the city's 1947 schedule of appropriations although last year the city appropriated $1,000 for the park. The mayor asked an appropriation sufficient to pay the caretaker and he pointed out that because of the lack of such money the $3,500 trust fund of the park has recently been "dipped into" for the caretaker's wages. He said the trust fund is earmarked for permanent improvements. Mayor Gordon disclosed that the park commission plans to soon build modern lavatories.

MR. COLVILLE told council that only $750 of last year's $1,000 appropriation from the city was used and he urged that the city now appropriate $500 to the park for payment to the caretaker and to reimburse the trust fund.

Councilman Ray Anderson voiced approval of the request and offered the motion to instruct Solicitor Gerhardt to prepare the necessary ordinance.

Councilman Ray Cook said that he has "all along" favored an annual appropriation to the park and that it was a "mistake" not to have included in the 1947 city budget an appropriation of $1,400 for the park. Councilman William M. Reid commented that "it is selfish to skimp on the park appropriation when the Ted Lewis Park benefits so many children."

dent, announced defeat of the measure. Four votes were necessary to pass the ordinance because the council has seven members and four is a majority. Two council members, George L. Crites and John Eshelman, were absent from Tuesday night's session.

When the criticism of street lights in outlying sections was voiced by Councilman Horn who suggested that the lights removed from downtown streets to make way for the new boulevard lights be used to replace the "bird boxes" on the outskirts of Circleville, Councilman Reid arose and said: "Maybe Mr. Horn doesn't know that we went through a depression in Circleville and that during that depression we had to buy cheap lights."

Council took no action on the street light proposal.

ORDINANCES given their first reading provide (1) an appropriation of $459 to purchase chairs and linoleum and for installation of a shower bath in the fire station on East Franklin street, (2) directing the service director to purchase and install a traffic light at South Court and Walnut streets, (3) an appropriation of $3,000 to replenish the medical fund of Berger hospital, and (4) an appropriation of $300 to finance extension of the First avenue sanitary sewer.

Ordinances given their second readings authorize (1) an appropriation of $2,000 to pay special police officers, (2) granting a $20 a month wage bonus to the water department meter maintenance man and the meter reader maintenance man, (3) an appropriation of $5,000 to the service department for the repaving and resurfacing of streets, and (4) granting a $4 a week wage increase to the supervisor of the municipal dump.

MAYOR Ben H. Gordon's report covering June was approved by unanimous vote. The report listed fines $20, licenses $4, bonds $115, total $139.

On behalf of the council finance committee Councilman Adkins submitted the city's financial report as of July 1. The report, which was unanimously approved, listed: General fund, receipts $2,783.54, expenditures $5,660.90, balance $24,321.10; sewage disposal, receipts $475, expenditures $2,358.56, balance $1,651.11; library fund receipts $98.94, expenditures $929.08, balance $8,613.87; auto street repair, receipts $32.50, expenditures $4,884.66, balance $1,713.18; gasoline tax fund, receipts none, expenditures $1,776.92, balance $93.59; hospital fund, receipts $4,034.31, expenditures $3,966.10, balance $3,131.18; waterworks fund, receipts $4,290, expenditures $14,374.94, balance $24,282.90. PARIS PAPER SAYS AMERICANS ENCOURAGE PLOT

PARIS, July 2—An influential Paris newspaper inferentially accused American interests to day of seeking to provoke war by encouraging the "Black Maquis" right-wing militarist plot to overthrow the French republican government.

The French press agency also reported that Gen. Edouard de Larminat had been dismissed from the post of inspector-general of colonial troops for alleged complicity.

The American angle was injected into the widening official investigation into the plot by the newspaper L'Intransigent.

This publication said the "Black Maquis" were affiliated with foreign interests wishing to provoke a world war now "while they possess a superior weapon—the atom bomb—over an eventual adversary."

The newspaper said these circles believe that before the end of December the "adversary" will have perfected a bacteriological weapon which will outclass the atom bomb.

STOCK PRICES FIRM

NEW YORK, July 2—Light profit-taking failed to cause much trouble in the stock market today and most prices held firm. In initial trades small advances were added to the sharp runups of yesterday. Thereafter prices backed and filled in a narrow range with most pivots a shade better at the start of the third hour.

TRAFFIC DEATH TOLL OF 275 DUE OVER HOLIDAY

CHICAGO, July 2—A July 4 holiday traffic death toll of 275 was predicted in Chicago today by the National Safety Council.

The council warned that in addition, there will be casualties from drownings, fireworks, heat exhaustion, food poisoning and other hazards.

Close to 30 million vehicles are expected to create the biggest traffic jam in history with nearly four billion miles recorded on speedometers during the three-day weekend.

To prevent fatalities, the council suggested:

1. Don't speed on the road.
2. Don't drink if you drink.
3. Don't use fireworks.
4. Don't overdo in exercise, eating or sun exposure.
5. Don't swim alone.

The Columbus Automobile Trades Association, Inc., announced that 43 of the 45 new car dealers in the capital city have started requiring new car customers to sign agreements that they will not "sell, barter, trade or assign" the new car to anyone within six months from purchase date.

The association said it hoped by this method to place new automobiles into the hands of people who definitely needed them. It noted that 40 new cars delivered recently were resold last week.

ECONOMIST ASKS SOLONS TO PLAN FOOD RATIONING

WASHINGTON, July 2—A Chicago economist told congress today that the nation is on the verge of a peacetime emergency which may necessitate a return to rationing of food and other products.

Dr. Leverett S. Lyon, chief executive officer of the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry, urged the joint congressional committee on the economic report to consider a rationing plan. He said:

"We are approaching, if we have not already reached, an emergency—if not a wartime economic emergency."

"We have reached a stage where congress may well give consideration to rationing of certain products of which food should be the first."

Lyon declared that congress should worry about inflation rather than the possibility of a recession.

Wash Hands Before Eating Urged as Polio Precaution

Parents should see that children wash hands thoroughly before eating as one precaution against polio, particularly during the summer epidemic season, according to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

The National Foundation through its local chapter is issuing a series of six simple health rules that should be observed during the summer to help combat the disease.

Scientific studies, financed by March of Dimes funds, indicate that the hands may be a means of spreading the virus infection through contamination of food, drinks or objects carried to the mouth.

For this reason, a high standard of personal cleanliness should be maintained especially during the polio danger months—late June through September, the National Foundation cautions, adding that fresh fruit and vegetables should be washed well before eating.

DANES SADDLED WITH 130,000 GERMAN GUESTS

Denmark Cannot Get Rid Of Nazis Who Moved In 2 1/2 Years Ago

By VERNER FORCHHAMMER
INS Staff Correspondent
OXBOEL CAMP FOR GERMAN REFUGEES, Denmark, July 2—Denmark is confronted today with more than 130,000 Germans "who came to dinner" two and a half years ago and will probably remain as unwelcome guests indefinitely.

Even though patience is wearing thin the Danes continue, in the role of polite hosts, working at heavy expense in time and money not only to make the Germans comfortable but to make them better citizens and teach them democracy.

Instilling democracy in such long time Nazis is a slow, painful task. A small body of anti-Nazi German emigrants attached to the Danish refugee administration is of considerable help.

ANKER PETERSEN, Danish administrator of Oxboel, said that when the first ballots were distributed among the Germans for the election of officers they did not know what to do with them.

It is difficult to tell to what extent Nazi ideas have been erased in the camps. War criminals, however, are being weeded out, and a number of active Nazis who attempted to find sanctuary in the refugee camps have been detected and returned to Germany.

In carrying out the democratic idea, the 30 refugee camps in Denmark are constituted as townships, with German mayors, vice mayors and town councils.

The Danes perform only a controlling role in the administration of the camps and in the well equipped hospitals where German doctors and nurses perform the actual work.

The Danish government decided at the outset to keep the refugees sharply segregated from the native population. Languages are taught in the camp schools, but not Danish. The Danes do not want to take any step which might lead to an absorption of this foreign and disliked element.

ALREADY THEY have been in Denmark two and a half years. When the motley, tired and sick throngs entered the country the wehrmacht took over thousands of dwellings and public buildings—including more than 80 per cent of the school-houses in Copenhagen—to billet them.

Subsequently, when Germany's resistance collapsed, Denmark inherited them from the wehrmacht. Scattered throughout the country, the 220,000 Germans were diseased and hungry, presenting a danger of contamination to the native population and a headache to the authorities.

About 20,000 were quartered on Bornholm Island where the Nazis had built a Baltic base. When the Russians captured the base, they evacuated the civilians to Germany.

But 200,000 others had to be cared for, decontaminated and removed from the schools, private homes and cultural centers.

DENMARK persistently has demanded that the occupying powers permit their repatriation to Germany. In recent months some 70,000 have been repatriated and about 30,000 are scheduled to go before Fall. But the allies say no more can be received in Germany because conditions there are too chaotic.

This will leave Denmark with 100,000 still to be cared for indefinitely. The Danes cannot understand why they must provide a haven for their erstwhile enemies.

They learn that Poland, Czechoslovakia and Hungary have poured millions of people of German origin—not German refugees—into Germany. They demand to know why Germans

RABBIT DAMAGE TO VEGETABLES CAN BE HALTED

Many Ways To Keep Bunnies From Nibbling Away On Home Gardens

Hungry bunnies need not be exterminated to prevent damage to garden flowers and vegetables, according to the Wildlife Management Institute.

Numerous distasteful repellents can be used to discourage rabbits from eating tender plants and chewing young orchard stock, and they are not expensive.

A number of the cheap commercial spraying mixtures and dusting powders will keep cottontails from nibbling on plantings, or any of the following "home remedies" will prove most effective with repeated applications: dust plants liberally with dusting sulphur, or with powdered lime when plantings are damp; sprinkle plants with red or cayenne pepper; or spray plants with a solution of any of these mixtures, three ounces of epsom salts in a gallon of water, one teaspoonful of lysol to a gallon of water, two teaspoonfuls of Black Leaf Forty to one gallon of soapy water.

GARDENERS can best solve the rabbit problems by erecting a two foot chicken wire fence around the garden or orchard, but the bottom should be staked to the ground.

The Ohio division of conservation live-trapping program, expected to get under way next January, will to a great extent eliminate rabbit damage to city gardens and orchards, when youth organizations aiding division field men, will transfer several thousand rabbits from urban and suburban areas to rural sectors.

Construction of the 6000 live-trap-carriers to be used in the project is expected to begin next month.

'ON THE BEAM' SLOGAN FOR NEW OHIO STATE FAIR

"On the Beam!" That is the slogan adopted for the 1947 Ohio State Fair which will be held at Columbus August 23 to 29.

"Now that the war is over and this country finds itself in peacetime production, with new farm and home equipment and many new commodities on the market, it occurred to us that this slogan was quite appropriate," stated State Fair Manager Ed Bath.

"Truly the Ohio State Fair, which is the show window of Ohio's agricultural and industrial progress will be 'on the beam'. We will have many former exhibitors on the grounds this year, now that they have products to sell," he said. "And you would be surprised at the exhibits which will give a glimpse into the future, exhibiting modern equipment for the farm, the factory, the home and for individual use."

"We are trying to streamline the Ohio State Fair to truly reflect this post-war period in which the Buckeye state is playing such an important role," Mr. Bath stated, pointing out that early entries indicate that the livestock, agricultural, and educational exhibits will keep pace with the "on the beam" progress of the remainder of the fair.

PACK OF DOGS CHEW TO DEATH BOY IN BRONX

NEW YORK, July 2—Police and medical authorities today probed the death of Stanley Balaban, 11, who was chewed to death by a pack of white bull terriers in the Bronx.

The attack occurred yesterday morning but the boy's body was not found until late afternoon when Patrolman Louis Rissone was called to the scene. Rissone was attacked by the dogs and was bitten on the right hip and shoulder. A police radio squad arrived in time to rescue Rissone and shot two of the animals.

Police said Stanley had been swimming at the Castle Hill bathing park in the Bronx and had left his clothes behind a wire fence. They said the dogs attacked him when he climbed the fence to get his clothes.

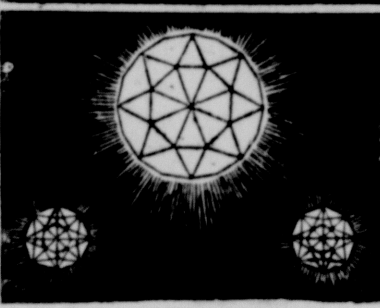

Two other dogs, all owned by Swen Sandgren, took part in the attack on the boy, police said. Sandgren contended the boy was trespassing. He said the dogs had been locked up and that someone had broken into his bathhouse and freed them.

MARSHALL HITS PROPAGANDA IN STRONG SPEECH

WASHINGTON, July 2—Secretary of State Marshall denounced what he termed the "malicious distortion" and deliberate propaganda aimed at impugning the motives behind American efforts to aid world recovery.

He told a luncheon of the

The secretary virgorously denied "the frequent propaganda assertions or implications that

HOME BUYERS OVERLOOK MANY TAX DEDUCTIONS

Accountants Urge Use Of Long Form In Making Out Returns

Next March 15 is relatively a long way off, but the wise home buyer will start now to anticipate the date and keep a record and proof of expenses, losses and other items that can be deducted from income taxes.

Unless such records are noted at the time, the average person has considerable difficulty in recalling and documenting them when tax-paying time comes around, according to accountants who specialize in income tax work.

It is estimated that home buyers are entitled to millions of dollars in deductions which they fail to report. Now, with no immediate reduction in tax rates in sight as a result of the Presidential veto of the tax bill, deductible items assume large importance.

MOST HOME buyers who are financing their purchase with a mortgage find they will come out further ahead if they use the long tax form to compute deductions exactly for interest and real estate and other taxes instead of using the short form which makes a flat allowable deduction of 10 per cent if income is less than $5,000 or $500 if more than $5,000.

Losses caused by fire, storm, explosion, frozen pipes—even drought and casualty damage to trees—are deductible when not fully compensated by insurance. The deduction is the difference between the amount of insurance received and cost of replacement. This does not apply, however, to termite or erosion damage. The law uses the words, "sudden, unexpected or unusual cause."

Neither can deductions be made for construction costs, expenses in acquiring property such as perfecting title, insurance premiums on the residence, decrease in value, attorney's fees, or local assessments which benefit the property.

ON THE OTHER hand, the home buyer can get credit for cost of replacing trees and shrubbery, provided damage came unexpectedly by storm, drought, insects or accident.

Proof must be submitted as to loss, such as an estimate by an expert of the property value with and without the shrubbery and trees.

FORMER AGENT FOR BRITISH IS SOUGHT IN PLOT

PARIS, July 2—A French nobleman who served daringly in the war as a British intelligence agent was hunted today as an arch-conspirator in the rightist "Black Maquis" plot to overthrow the fourth republic.

French secret police threw out a nationwide dragnet for 30-year-old, one-legged Count Herouet Demerville, a fabulous wartime daredevil who blew up the Nazi propaganda radio station, "Voice of the Reich."

County Demerville, who formerly lived in Rio De Janeiro, was described as a key member of the conspiracy that was to have been touched off by commando raids and flying armored-column attacks on Paris.

Seized French fighter planes were to have given protective cover for the lightning sweep dedicated to setting up a totalitarian "directoire" government in the Napoleonic tradition.

Secret police announced the arrest of stockbroker Pierre Lefebvre, whom they described as a minor link in the abortive conspiracy, rooted in the conservative cities and villages of Brittany.

Government agents continued the questioning of 20-year-old Claude Chauvel, who was seized yesterday as his father, Jean Chauvel, secretary general of the foreign office strove to save the Marshall plan at the Paris Big-Three conference.

CONGRESS HITS SNAG TRYING TO PROVIDE FUNDS

WASHINGTON, July 2—Congress struck an impasse today on providing immediate funds for operation of government departments in the new fiscal year.

The senate appropriations committee unanimously rejected a house resolution continuing funds on a limited basis affecting less than half a dozen agencies. It substituted its own bill which authorizes the departments to continue expenditures for the next month at the same rate as provided this year.

Chairman Bridges (R) N. H., and members of the senate committee immediately went into conference with house appropriation leaders in an effort to iron out the differences which developed from the year-end log jam of appropriation bills.

BOY SAVES LIFE OF MAN WHO FELL INTO LAKE

COLUMBUS, O., July 2—A 71-year-old Columbus man owed his life today to the heroism and quick thinking of a 15-year-old high school student who rescued him from drowning.

JAPAN GOES WHALING
A JAPANESE whaling expedition to the Antarctic, though disapproved by Britain, Australia, New Zealand and Norway, is to go ahead, under the endorsement of Secretary of State Marshall and Gen. MacArthur. This revival of a national industry, it is estimated, will net ten million dollars which can be applied to U. S. occupation costs in Japan. Further, something like $6,000,000 worth of whale oil will bring an important item into foreign exchange on the plus side for this country. There are other usable products provided by whales. The expedition is a vigorous step toward helping the Japanese to support themselves. It certainly is of wide interest to the American taxpayer. Since this country is assuming the cost of Japan's food deficit, official sanction of the whaling expedition seems well within U. S. rights.

FORTY-NINTH STAR
HAWAII, more than ever, wants to become a state. In an informative book on the island, written by Prof. Blake Clark of the University of Hawaii, arguments are marshalled for adding this territory as the nation's 49th state. The author believes that a local plebiscite would show 90 per cent approval. The territorial legislature has petitioned 14 times for statehood, a dozen Congressional investigating committees have reported favorably on such a move.

For a long time fear of the disloyalty of the island's 150,000 Japanese influenced army, navy and American politicians against admitting the island since Japanese congressmen from Hawaii would have access to information that could be sent on to Tokyo. Fear of Japanese menace has been removed by the war and the heroic performance in battle of the Nisei, or, as they prefer to be called, the AJA, "Americans of Japanese Ancestry."

Business interests, which opposed statehood because they did not wish to end the benevolent feudalism maintained toward workers, now have learned to work with labor unions and show a new attitude toward native employees. Citizens of the Mainland would do well to inform themselves about this island paradise, for it looks as if one of these days it's going to be allowed to join up. The old flag is probably in for a change in its star arrangements.

THE LAST AMUNDSEN
ROALD AMUNDSEN, having no children of his own to carry on his name, adopted an Eskimo girl. He was the Norwegian explorer who earned immortality by a triple crown of achievements which no one can rival. He discovered the South Pole, was the first to see both the South and the North Poles, and the first to find and achieve the Northwest Passage from the Atlantic to the Pacific by way of the Arctic.

NEW YORK—I was wandering down Eighth ave. on a recent Friday night, and since Friday is fight night at Madison Square Garden there was a certain nervous, festive air to the street. Crowds were surging across the pavement, cops were sweating and cursing, trying to keep order, taxicabs were jockeying for position, and on the street corners were the inevitable little knots of guys with dark, curly sideburns and gaudy ties talking about why Larkin looks so good against second-raters only he's a bum against anybody halfway fair like Williams. It looked like quite a street at the moment, but all I could think of was that the festive air was misleading. Of all New York's streets, Eighth ave. is perhaps the least attractive. A thousand streets criss-cross my town like a gigantic lattice-work, and most of them have some characteristic that make you remember them, usually fondly, if you are corny and romantically inclined like me. But Eighth ave. is a cheap street. There is no flavor to it. It brightens up on fight nights, for the ring crowd brings the impact of a grotesque, shabby oxygen tent wherever it goes—but in the daytime Eighth ave. is a mean little street. Park ave. is elegance and Third ave. is yesterday's saloon and Lenox ave. is easy street, the happy road of the happy people—but Eighth ave. is a lane that seems to have been born out of the Thirties. The Thirties were a gray, depressing, suffocating time of life; I know, for those were my early, registering years on earth and I had the feeling always of living with a stone on my chest. Maybe that

By Kenneth L. Dixon
Distributed by International News Service

WASHINGTON, July 2 — The little restaurant and amusement center was busy with the afternoon trade. Quite a few people, just back from visiting the zoo, were eating, drinking and playing the various coin machines.

There were gadgets where you could test your weight, your grip, your electricity-shock-resistance or get your fortune told. And, of course, there were many machines devoted to testing your accuracy with various types of weapons.

One of these modern-warfare gadgets, located right next to the machine which tests your ability to drive across the country without getting off the road, was getting a lot of play from the younger element in the crowd.

It was the atomic bombing machine, and the youngsters were crowding one another for the opportunity to play it.

For a nickel (I think it was) you could "atom-bomb" a city and count up your score. It was quite an intriguing layout.

Within the machine was a perfectly pictured city, complete with skyscrapers, slums, tenements and all the metropolitan trappings. You read the instructions, put your coin in the slot and got set to atomize the entire pictured city.

Of course, if your hand wavered slightly on the controls and you dropped your bombs out around the outskirts, you wouldn't kill nearly as many people as you should—and your score would be lower.

For the scoring was done entirely on the basis of how many thousands of citizens you managed to kill.

As was mentioned before, the gadget was getting quite an enthusiastic play from the kids. A trio of ten-year-olds were busy operating it at the time.

Their conversation went something like this:

The little redheaded boy, as soon as the "mission accomplished" sign went up on the machine — "I got 60,000! I got 60,000!"

The towhead who followed him — "Aw, that's not so hot. I killed 80,000 the other day. Now watch me!"

The freckle-face who was waiting his turn — "It's how you aim ahead of time that does it. You gotta remember that you're in an airplane, so you gotta bomb from behind the target. That's what does it!"

Sure enough, the towhead managed to kill several thousand more residents of the much-bombed city than had the redhead. Then freckle-face took over and showed them the real art of atomic bombing. He got close to 100,000.

"Nothing to it," he shrugged with transparent modesty. "you just gotta know how to aim these things."

He perished in 1922 in the Arctic while searching in the hopes of rescuing a lost personal enemy, Gen. Umberto Nobile.

Now Nita Amundsen, the Eskimo girl whom he adopted, has entered Nazarene College in Red Deer, Alberta. She hopes later to become a teacher of her people in Alaska. So the Amundsen tradition of friendliness with the Eskimos goes on.

A Wound That May Be Serious

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

NOBODY likes to make a fuss about nothing and somehow or other for most people a wound of the hand seems to fall into this category. Unless there is a great deal of bleeding at the time of the injury or a bad infection later on, we feel the matter scarcely merits the attention of the doctor. Quite the reverse is true.

A wound which seems trivial at first may have serious consequences for the reason that, on the hand, nerves, tendons and other important structures lie close to the surface. If one of these is severed, use of the hand may be lost unless given prompt attention.

A Sterile Dressing
According to Dr. John E. Kirkpatrick of San Francisco, when the injured patient is first seen, the wound is protected from further infection with a dry, sterile dressing. This is bandaged in place to help control bleeding. When the bleeding has been controlled, the physician makes a careful study to determine just what structures have been injured.

It may be necessary to take an X-ray to see if any bones have been broken. The skin is examined to see if there is any loss of sensation due to nerve injuries. Then, too, it is important to find out if any of the tendons which connect muscle to bone have been cut. Once a physician has determined the extent of the tissue damage, the patient is taken to the operating room, given an anesthetic to put him to sleep, and the wound is repaired.

In doing this, the skin around the wound is cleaned first with soap and sterile water. Then the wound itself is cleaned and finally washed out with a warm, sterile salt solution. Here again, some physicians prefer using antiseptics.

Injured Structure Repaired
Next, all dead tissue is cut away, and the injured structures are repaired. This may mean sewing the cut ends of tendons or nerves together.

After the repair is completed and the skin sewed up, the wound is covered with sterile gauze which has first been soaked in a mild antiseptic such as sterile petrolatum. In some cases, it may be necessary to apply a plaster cast to keep the fingers in the proper position, which will relax the injured nerves and tendons while they are healing.

Hand injuries should never be neglected because they may lead to permanent incapacity.

The HOLLOW

Copyright, 1946, by Agatha Christie. Distributed by King Features Syndicate

SYNOPSIS

Elderly Lady Lucy Angkatell discussed the problem of entertaining the innumerable group of guests she had invited to The Hollow for the coming week-end with young Midge Hardcastle, a distant relative. Outside of attractive Dr. John Christow and Gerda, his incredibly dull wife, the others were all members of the Angkatell clan: kindly Henrietta Savanaka, successful sculptress; serious-minded young David Angkatell, university student; and quiet Edward Angkatell, whose unrequited love of Henrietta blinded him to the charms of Midge, who had adored him since childhood. Meanwhile, in her London studio, Henrietta was in the throes of completing her latest masterpiece—the blind Nausicaa. The search for just the right model had been long and arduous and, although the features of the girl she had finally chosen were perfect, the veridicality of her character had somehow managed to creep into Henrietta's finished work. Not even thoughts of John Christow, with whom Henrietta had been in love for the past six months, dispelled her dissatisfaction with the statue, and reluctantly, she destroyed it. In his Harley Street consulting room, John Christow sat pondering the cause of his increasing lassitude and irritability. Following lunch with the children, he and Gerda would drive to The Hollow . . . and Henrietta. His thoughts went back to an earlier chapter in his life, fifteen years when he had been madly in love with glamorous Veronica Gray, rising young motion picture actress. He had broken their engagement when she refused to give up her career, and shortly after had married the prosaic Gerda, whose slavish devotion to him throughout the years had enabled him to pursue his beloved profession in peace.

Zena, aged nine, with a pretty, vacuous face, whimpered: "I want my dinner. Can't we start, Mother?" "In a minute, dear; we must wait for Father."

"We could start," said Terence. "Father wouldn't mind. You know how fast he eats."

Gerda shook her head. "Carve the mutton? But she never could remember which was the right side to plunge the knife in. Of course, perhaps Lewis had put it the right way on the dish—but sometimes she didn't—and John was always annoyed if it was done the wrong way. And Gerda reflected desperately, it always was the wrong way when she did it. Oh, dear, how cold the gravy was getting—a skin was forming on the top of it—she must send it back—but then if John were just coming—and surely he would be coming now—

Her mind went around and around unhappily . . . like a trapped animal.

Sitting back in his consulting room chair, tapping with one hand on the table in front of him, conscious that upstairs lunch must be ready, John Christow was nevertheless unable to force himself to get up.

San Miguel . . . blue sea . . . smell of mimosa . . . a scarlet trim-topa upright against green leaves . . . the hot sun . . . the dust . . . that desperation of love and suffering.

He thought, Oh, Lord, not that. Never that again! That's over. He wished suddenly that he had never known Veronica, never married Gerda, never met Henrietta.

Mrs. Crabtree, he thought, was worth the lot of them . . . That had been a bad afternoon last week. He'd been so pleased with the reactions. She could stand .008 by now. And then had come that alarming rise in toxicity and the D.L. reaction had been negative instead of positive.

The old bean had lain there, blue, gasping for breath—peering up at him with malicious, indomitable eyes.

"Making a bit of a guinea pig out of me, ain't you, dearie? Experimenting—that kinder thing."

"We want to get you well," he had said, smiling down at her. "Up to your tricks, yer mean!"

She had grinned suddenly. "I don't mind, bless yer. You carry on, doctor! Someone's got to be first, that's it, ain't it? 'Ad me 'kid' permed, I did, when I was a 'air. It wasn't 'alf a doddled business then! Looked terrible, I did. Couldn't get a comb through it. But there—I enjoyed the fun. You can 'ave yer fun with me. I can stand it."

"Feel pretty bad, don't you?" His hand was on her pulse. Vitality passed from him to the panting old woman on the bed.

"Orful, I feel. You're about right! 'Ain't gone according to plan—that's it, isn't it? Never you mind. Don't you lose 'eart. I can stand a lot, I can!"

John Christow said appreciatively: "You're fine. I wish all my patients were like you."

"I wanter get well . . . that's why! I wanter get well . . . Mum, she lived to be eight-eight—and old grandma was ninety when she popped off. We're long lives in our family, we are."

He had come away miserable, racked with doubt and uncertainty. He'd been so sure he was on

WHILE there are signs of an exciting and exhilarating state of affairs, with energies, emotions and inclinations keyed up to high tempo action, yet should these be allowed to run away with good judgment and reason, there might be regrets. Romance and adventure, finance, professional and social factors are involved, with surprising benefits for regulated and not rash or impulsive moves. Make no decision for thrills.

For The Birthday
Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of exciting and romantic adventures, in which domestic, social, cultural as well as business life and affairs are happily exciting and dramatic. The prospects are for new developments or sudden change in these ways of life, but to be governed entirely by emotional or impulsive urges might complicate or strangely involved unusual denouements. With all the drama of these, it might be well to keep in mind the conventions

Willma Jean Whitehead, Frank L. Hinkle Married

Impressive Double Ring Ceremony Is Held In Church

At an impressive double ring ceremony performed Thursday, June 26, at 7:30 p. m. in the Ashville Methodist church, Miss Willma Jean Whitehead, daughter of Mrs. William J. Whitehead, Ashville, and the late Mr. Whitehead, became the bride of Frank Livingston Hinkle, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Hinkle, Ashville.

The Rev. Walter C. Peters, Marietta, formerly of Ashville, read the nuptial vows before an altar adorned with white gladioli, delphinium, lilies, feverfew and baby's breath, banked with ferns and large vases and baskets of white flower arrangements. Two seven-branch candelabra and four standards with white tapers cast a soft glow over the wedding scene. Altar rail was entwined with foliage and around the wall lights were festoons of huckleberry and arbor-vitae.

THE BRIDE came down the white aisle where each pew was marked in ribbon, wearing a Dutchess ivory satin gown, styled with a sweetheart neckline outlined with seed pearls, long fitted bodice trimmed in seed pearls. Bouffant skirt terminated into a long full train. Her three tiered full length veil of imported French illusion was caught by a satin bonnet trimmed with seed pearls.

She carried a white Testament topped by a white purple-throated orchid surrounded with white ribbons knotted with white rose buds falling in a cascade. Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls and matching earrings, gifts from the bridegroom.

Miss Mary Ellen Hines, Duval, attended the bride as maid of honor. Miss Doris Hartman, Miss Millicent Krout, Lancaster, Miss Lois Sanders, Leesburg, and Mrs. Frank Bradburn, Ashville, sister of the bridegroom, served as bridesmaids.

THEIR GOWNS of tissue taffeta were styled alike with an off-the-shoulder neckline, narrow bertha, short full sleeves, fitted bodice, full bouffant skirt with a bustle back. Miss Hines wore a yellow gown and carried a colonial bouquet of pink roses and blue delphinium, centered with a yellow tuberous begonia, tied with a blue bow.

Miss Hartman and Mrs. Bradburn in moss green gowns carried colonial bouquets of pink roses and delphinium, surrounded by a pink lace ruffle. Miss Krout and Miss Sanders in apricot gowns had colonial bouquets of pink roses with delphinium and green lace ruffle and bow.

All the attendants wore matching garlands of rose buds and ribbons in their hair, pearls, and white gloves. They also wore bracelets, gifts from the bride.

While the couple knelt in prayer on a white satin pillow, Mrs. Hosler sang, "The Lord's Prayer".

MRS. WHITEHEAD, mother of the bride, greeted her guests in a hyacinth blue floor length gown. Her hat was of gathered white illusion centered with pink and blue flowers. Mrs. Hinkle, mother of the bridegroom, wore a dinner gown of pastel blue floral net. Her small hat was fash-

The home was attractively decorated throughout with baskets and arrangements of Summer flowers. During the reception soft piano music was presented by Miss Clara Lou Peters, Ashville.

GIANT SLUGGERS MENACE HOMER MARK OF YANKS

Indians Win But Feller Is Forced To Quit With
Pulled Muscle

NEW YORK, July 2 The major league home run record, that proud citadel sculptured by home-run hammering New York Yankee bats in 1936 trembled visibly today following a devastating assault by the New York Giants.

Eleven years ago, a powerful Yankee team juggernauted to the first of four consecutive pennants on the strength of a record-establishing 182 four baggers. These were the fence-busting days of Lou Gehrig, Joe DiMaggio (a rookie), Bill Dickey, Tony Lazzeri, George Selkirk, Frank Crosetti, and Red Rolfe.

This season, the Giants have banded together a powerful, and up to now an unstoppable home run hitting aggregation. Last night, five Giants rocked three Boston pitchers for home runs in a 16 hit barrage that netted a 15-to-3 triumph over the league leaders.

Johnny Mize (21), Willard Marshall (17), Walker Cooper (17), Bobby Thomson (10), and Buddy Kerr (3) hit for the circuit, each time with a man on base.

THE GIANTS now have hit 90 home runs in 62 games, an average of 1.451 round trippers a game. If the Giants maintain this pace they can rack up a total approaching 220 home runs.

Should the all-time mark elude Mel Ott's record, the National League home run standard of 171 hardly seems safe.

The most plaintive wails of those who see no pennant chance for the Giants has concerned poor pitching. No one can refute the condemning testimony of inconsistent mound work.

IN ANOTHER National League scuffle, the second place Brooklyn Dodgers flubbed an opportunity to gain the senior loop top rung. The Philadelphia Phillies organized a five run rally in the sixth inning to defeat the Brooks, 5 to 3.

Jackie Robinson stretched his consecutive hitting streak to 18 games by singling in the sixth. Del Ennis, Philly outfielder, who had compiled a string of 19 straight games in which he got a hit was finally stopped.

The fourth place St. Louis Cardinals edged the cellar-dwelling Pittsburgh Pirates, 2 to 1, on Erv Dusak's ninth inning home run off Ernie Bonham.

The Chicago Cubs and the Cincinnati Reds were not scheduled.

IN THE AMERICAN League, the Detroit Tigers, behind the three-hit pitching of Al Benton, scored an unearned run in the eighth inning off Ed Lopat to win 2 to 1 over the Chicago White Sox.

The Cleveland Indians defeated the St. Louis Browns 9 to 3, but their fireballing ace, Bob Feller was forced to retire in the second inning because of a pulled muscle in his back.

The other four clubs in the league were not scheduled.

A-1 With A's

CURRENT pitching star in the American league, Carl Scheib, a right-hander, has won three games in a row for the Philadelphia Athletics to give Connie Mack's Quaker City entry a first division tinge. Scheib, who hails from Gratz, Pa., was on the National Defense list when the season began. (International)

Then, Jim Gleeson of the Colonels won the second game with a two-run homer in the ninth. Louisville was a 7-to-6 victor.

Charley Stancu of the Birds racked up his ninth victory as he bested Wes Bailey in the opener. Ira Hutchinson, veteran Red Bird relief hurler-coach, suffered his first loss in the nightcap after six straight victories.

Kansas City had a five-game winning streak snapped when Minneapolis took a see-saw opener, 9 to 8. The Blues came back, however, to win the after-piece, 7 to 5.

Toledo went from one extreme to the other in taking a twin bill from Indianapolis. Chet Johnson pitched a three hit shutout against Bob Malloy as the Hens won the opener, 1 to 0. The second game also went to Toledo, 17 to 7, with the Mud Hens getting 23 hits and the Indians 14.

St. Paul and Milwaukee broke even. The Brewers piled up a 10-to-2 victory behind the veteran Buck Ross in the curtain raiser but dropped the next one, 7 to 6.

MAYOR BACKS CAMPAIGN TO HALT ACCIDENTS

Gordon Issues Proclamation
Urging Motorists To Check On Autos

Observance of Ohio Traffic Safety Month began Tuesday in Circleville and will continue through July 31. Police Chief William F. McCrady said all police officers will take part in the drive to cut down traffic accidents. State Highway Patrolmen L. G. Ridenour and Clyde E. Wells, stationed in the Circleville area, are also cooperating in the campaign.

Mayor Ben H. Gordon issued an official proclamation urging wide observance of the drive.

The proclamation follows:

WHEREAS, there is through out the State of Ohio a mounting toll of highway traffic deaths and injuries; and

Whereas, the reduction of this serious menace is a matter of individual responsibility of every citizen; and

Whereas, the traffic accident toll is the direct result of mechanically unsound cars that are operated by careless drivers; and

Whereas, the Police officers of the State of Ohio, under the sponsorship of the Ohio State Chief of Police and the State Highway Patrol have instituted a Traffic Safety Check Program; and

Whereas, the Police Traffic Safety Check Program, to have its fullest measure of success in saving lives and preventing injuries, must have the complete support of the entire public;

Now, therefore, I, Ben H. Gordon, Mayor of the City of Circleville, do hereby proclaim the period between July 1 and July 31, 1947, as a period for the correction of mechanically faulty automobiles, and a period during which drivers will pledge themselves to learn safe driving practices; and I do urge and advise the citizens of this state, both individually and through their organized groups, to cooperate with the police of the State of Ohio to bring the fullest possible effectiveness to the Police Traffic Safety Check Slogan, "Check your Driving — Check your Car — Check Accidents."

TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH

Registered U. S. Patent Office

A Flower That Gives Double Value

By DEAN HAULDAY
Distributed by Central Press Association

LUNARIA, commonly known as Honesty, more than lives up to its latter name by giving double value to the home gardener who plants it. During the summer, Honesty lends color to the garden, with its gay sprays of lilac-purple flowers. In the winter the attractive satiny seed pods are used in winter bouquets.

The interesting flat, parchment-like seed pods are illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, as are the plant's summer flowers. The pods are about an inch or an inch and a half in diameter. Because the seeds can be seen through the semi-transparent covering of the seed pods, the plant was given the name of "Honesty."

The more common varieties of Lunaria are biennial and produce flowers and seed pods the second year. There is also a perennial but its seed pods are not as showy. Most gardeners grow the plant for its seed pods, although the flowers themselves are extremely attractive.

The seed pods should be allowed to mature fully before cutting. They should then be stored in a dry place for a week to harden off. The outer, ragged covering can then be easily removed, and the shining pods are ready to be used in bouquets. They will last all winter.

The plant's scientific name, Lunaria, means moon in Latin. It was so named because the silvery white partition of the large seed pods suggests the round, silvery moon. In addition, to its common name of Honesty, it is also known as Moonwort and Satin Flower.

The different varieties are natives of Europe and western Asia but are easily grown in this country and have been for long years.

Does Stomach
Gas and Bloat
Make You Feel Miserable?

If so, here is how you may get blessed relief in freeing your stomach from this nervous distress. It works this way: Everytime food enters the stomach a vital gastric juice must flow normally to break-up certain food particles; else the food may ferment. Sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a morbid, touchy, fretful, peevish, nervous condition. Loss of appetite, underweight, restless sleep, weakness.

To get real relief you must increase the flow of this vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in increasing this flow when it is too little or scanty due to a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia—do with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red-blood you should eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better.

Avoid punishing yourself with over-doses of soda and other alkalis to counteract gas and bloating when what you so dearly need is SSS Tonic to help you digest food for body strength and repair. Don't wait! Join the host of happy people SSS Tonic has helped. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle of SSS Tonic from your drug store today. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Blackwell and Brecheen Head NL All Star Cast

NEW YORK, July 2 — Harry (The Cat) Brecheen, who played the wily feline to the American League's "mouse" in the last World Series, was one of seven National League pitchers named today for action, one week hence, in the 1947 all star game at Chicago.

Another was Ewell Blackwell, Cincinnati's no-hit and low-hit specialist, who leads both leagues with his 13 and 2 record with a club chronically below .500.

The remaining five, representing Manager Eddie Dyer's most astute judgment in personal values, are Warren Spahn and Johnny Sain, of the Boston Braves, Ralph Branca, of the Dodgers George Munger, of Mr. Dyer's own Cardinals, and Philadelphia's antique Lynwood "Schoolboy" Rowe.

THIS TALENTED array, according to the revised system of selection, was the only discretionary action permitted Dyer in connection with his all star personnel.

Simultaneously, the league formally announced its opening

CLINTON P. ANDERSON
Secretary of Agriculture Says:

American Women -

Your Used Fats
Are Still Needed!

America's homemakers have saved and turned in over 600 million pounds of used cooking fats since 1942. This is an average of nearly 20 pounds for each family in the United States. It is a record of which every woman can be proud.

However, it is still necessary to conserve every pound of fat, since the over-all fat supply situation is little better now than it was last year when we were desperately short, particularly of industrial fats.

Manufacture of many of the things we all use and wear in our daily lives requires industrial fats or the products of industrial fats. Used cooking fats turned in by American women have been and continue to represent an important part of our total industrial fats supply. Every pound of salvaged fat helps meet the need.

towards a happy medium between over-arrangements and swing. "The modern style, a combination of Kostalanetz and, say, Tommy Dorsey," says Case, "has fiddles and rich music, but it also has a good beat, a dance beat."

Now it's Jackie Kelk, Aldrich Family's "Homer", who may be a disc jockey. A local New York station has asked the nasal voiced comic to emcee a daily program on which only novelty records, like Danny Kaye's and Spike Jones' would be used.

Radio stars, like their millions of listeners, have certain writing habits and idiosyncrasies. For example, Sammy Kaye uses only green ink. Bing Crosby signs all contracts with the same pen, which he's had for many years. Jay Jostyn (Mr. District Attorney) likes the new fangled ball-bearing pens even though he's changed his three times to get a workable one. Bob Hope has a combination pencil and cigarette lighter. Bud "Superman" Collier never seems to find anything available but a pencil stub. Jack Benny has received dozens of expensive fountain pens as gifts but still prefers a modest $2 quill a fan sent him. Ralph Edwards, of "Truth or Consequences", uses a pencil which can project five different colored leads. Paul Lavalle uses his arranging pen and ink for all purposes. Ted Collins has a gold pencil which is constantly running out of lead. Red Skelton kids his friends by offering them a pen which he's filled with milk. Bariton Robert Merrill stiff prefers the old-fashioned lead pencil. Maestro Percy Faith, who writes arrangements seven days a week, also uses a special arranger's pen filled with black ink.

Permanent wave company is expanding sponsorship of "Ladies Be Seated" to five times weekly. C. E. Hooper is offering to sell his firm and services to Broadcast Measurement Bureau for one million dollars. Arthur Kurlan, West Coast producer, is suing CBS for $150,000 for allegedly using an idea of his for its current show, "My Friend Irma". The re-election of James C. Petrillo to the American Federation of Musicians marks his eighth term in office.

Bing Crosby will make part of his next season's recordings for his radio show from England. A broadcast from Moscow revealed that there are 5,500,000 radio sets in Russian homes. "Reunion", sustainer dealing with reunions between outstandings personalities in all fields, debuts July 6. President Truman's broadcast from Princeton University on Tuesday, June 17 had a total audience of 6,571,000.

MEMPHIS, TENN., July 2—Her suggestion that England might solve its economic problems by becoming one of the United States has brought Miss Doris Winn of Memphis more than 200 letters from Britain.

Miss Winn said most of the epistles from the English strongly disapproved of her suggestion. One called the U. S. a "fetid, gum chewing confederation."

City and County Residents To Observe Independence Day Anniversary Friday

City offices and the public library will remain closed Friday but will be open on Saturday.

The office of the Agricultural Conservation Committee is among the offices which will remain closed Friday and Saturday.

BIGGEST HOLIDAY event of the county will be the annual July 4 celebration at Ashville.

Many Circlevilleans are planning holiday trips out of town, while many former Circleville residents will pay a visit to their former home community on the holiday.

Many other Circleville area residents will enjoy outings, motor trips, fishing expeditions, or indulgence in sports and recreational activities of various kinds over the Fourth of July holiday weekend.

All indications are that the Circleville district will have a "safe and sane" Fourth of July—insofar as the setting off of explosives is concerned—and while law-enforcement officials voiced a warning to motorists to "drive carefully and thus avoid accidents" they said they would keep their fingers crossed and hope for the best.

INCIDENTALLY the holiday known as the Fourth of July could be celebrated on July 2, July 19, Aug. 2, or even on Dec. 6 as well as on July 4, according to historical facts set forth in the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

As early as Dec. 6, 1775, Congress had declared its independence of the British parliament, and on June 7, Richard Henry Lee, delegate from Virginia to the Continental Congress, made the motion "that these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent states."

This resolution was adopted on July 2. What is now called the Declaration of Independence was actually an explanation of this resolution of independence of the British crown and was adopted on July 4, 1776.

THE DECLARATION of Independence was not ordered engrossed—copied in document form—and signed, however, until July 19, and most of the signatures were placed on it on Aug. 2, although at least six were attached still later. One of the signers, Thomas McKean, added his signature to the document five years after it was adopted, according to the Britannica.

"For 101 years after the Declaration was proclaimed it had no permanent home," says the encyclopaedia. "During its wanderings, it found shelter in ten cities and five states, twice narrowly escaped destruction by fire, and in both the Revolutionary War and the War of 1812 was nearly captured by the British.

"In 1894, when the text of the manuscript had been dimmed by more than 50 years' exposure to light and its signatures damaged by too frequent rolling of the parchment, the document was placed in a safe in the State Department library. Finally, in 1921, it was removed to the Library of Congress, where it is on permanent exhibition in a shrine specially constructed for its preservation and safe-keeping."

The Declaration of Independence was written in its original form by Thomas Jefferson, then 33 years old, who later became the third president of the United States. The final Declaration as adopted by Congress differs only in details from Jefferson's draft.
